INTRODUCTION TO THE PUBLIC ACCOUNTS

Nature of the Public Accounts

The Public Accounts is the report of the Government of Canada prepared each fiscal year by the Receiver General as required by Section 64 of the Financial Administration Act.

The report covers the fiscal year of the Government, which ends on March 31, and is prepared from data contained in the accounts of Canada and from more detailed records maintained in departments and agencies. The accounts of Canada is the centralized record of the Government's financial transactions maintained by the Receiver General in which the transactions of all departments and agencies are summarized. Each department and agency is responsible for reconciling its accounts to the control accounts of the Receiver General, and for maintaining detailed records of the transactions in their accounts.

The report covers the financial transactions of the Government during the year. In certain cases, parliamentary authority to undertake transactions was provided by legislation approved in earlier years.

Format of the Public Accounts

The Public Accounts is produced in three volumes.

Volume I presents a summary analysis of the financial transactions of the Government. Its content is summarized as follows:

SECTION 1: financial overview and a ten-year summary of the Government's financial transactions;

SECTION 2: audited financial statements of the Government of Canada, prepared in accordance with Section 64 of the Financial Administration Act;

SECTION 3: review of budgetary revenue;

SECTION 4: review of budgetary expenditure;

SECTION 5: analysis of consolidated accounts;

SECTION 6: analysis of loans, investments and advances;

SECTION 7: analysis of specified purpose accounts;

SECTION 8: analysis of other liabilities;

SECTION 9: analysis of foreign exchange accounts;

SECTION 10: analysis of unmatured debt; and,

SECTION 11: analysis of other information related to the financial statements.

Volume II is published in two parts. Part I presents the financial operations of the Government, segregated by ministry while Part II presents additional information and analyses.

(a) PART I

Part I is designed to reflect as closely as possible the form and content of Part II of the Main Estimates. Most tables and statements in Part I display the source and disposition of spending authorities. The content of Part I is summarized as follows:

(i) Summary Tables (Section 1)

Section 1 includes tables which provide summaries of the financial operations contained in the ministerial sections. It also includes, as appendices, the full wording of all authorities granted in current year Appropriation Acts, of all authorities granted by statutes other than Appropriation Acts, of all non-lapsing authorities granted in the current year, and of all authorities available from previous years.

(ii) Ministerial Sections (Sections 2 to 30)

There is one section for each ministry. The programs for the departments and agencies for which a Minister is responsible to Parliament are grouped together to provide a total ministry presentation. Each ministerial section provides a statement of program objectives and activity descriptions. Each ministerial section also includes, where applicable, a uniform set of statements to present each ministry's financial operations. These statements are:

- Ministry Summary

  This statement displays by program the source and disposition of each budgetary and non-budgetary authority granted by Parliament in Appropriation Acts and other statutes.

- Programs by Activity

  This statement displays by program the source and disposition of authorities for each activity under each type of expenditure (operating, capital, transfer payments and non-budgetary).

- Transfer Payments

  This statement displays by program the source and disposition of authorities for each transfer payment.

- Details of Amounts Credited to the Vote

  This statement displays by program the nature of revenues and receipts which increase the amounts which may be spent from appropriations having net voting authority.

- Revenue

  This statement displays by program the nature of revenue collected for each main classification of revenue.

(b) PART II

Part II presents additional information and analyses. The content of Part II is summarized as follows:

- financial statements of revolving funds (Section 1);
- financial statements of departmental corporations and other entities (Section 2);
- supplementary information required by the Financial Administration Act (Section 3);
- accounts receivable (Section 4);
- professional and special services (Section 5);
- construction and/or acquisition of land, buildings, works, machinery and equipment (Section 6);
- transfer payments (Section 7);
- public debt charges (Section 8);
- payments of damage claims, ex gratia payments, Federal Court awards and nugatory payments (Section 9);
- federal-provincial shared-cost programs (Section 10);
- other Government-wide information (Section 11); and,
- other miscellaneous information (Section 12).

Volume III contains an annual consolidated report on the businesses and activities of all parent Crown corporations together with a listing of all Crown corporations and other corporate interests of Canada.

It would be appreciated if you could complete and return the Reader's Survey inserted at the beginning of this volume

1990-91 — THE YEAR IN RETROSPECT

This section provides an overview of the financial operations of the Government of Canada. The financial statements are set out in summary form, with comparative figures for the previous ten years. The financial transactions are presented in accordance with the accounting policies explained in Note 1 to the audited financial statements in Section 2 of this volume.

The Deficit and Net Debt

The deficit for fiscal year 1990-91 was $30,618 million, an increase of $1,622 million from 1989-90. The increase in the deficit in 1990-91 was entirely attributable to the impact of higher interest rates on public debt charges, as budgetary revenues exceeded program spending. As a percentage of the economy as measured by Gross Domestic Product (GDP), the deficit has declined from a postwar peak of 8.7% in 1984-85 to 4.6% in 1990-91.

With the deficit increasing to $30,618 million in 1990-91, the accumulated deficit, or net debt, stood at $388,429 million as of March 31, 1991. As a percentage of GDP, the net debt stood at 57.8%, the highest level in the postwar period. The net debt figures, on an historical basis, have been revised to incorporate adjustments to previously published estimates. These include a correction of an error in the calculation in last year's Public Accounts to the allowance for the actuarial deficiency of the indexed portion of the Government's employee pension accounts. In addition, the Government has restated its investment in its holding of shares in Petro-Canada to reflect more properly the market value of these shares. Both of these adjustments have been made on a retroactive basis. The net impact of these adjustments on net debt is largely offsetting and is shown in Table 1.8a.

Table 1.1 sets out the deficit and net debt over the last ten fiscal years, both in absolute terms and as a percentage of GDP; figures for GDP relate to the calendar years ending in those years. Chart A compares the rate of growth of net debt with the rate of growth of GDP for the last ten fiscal years.

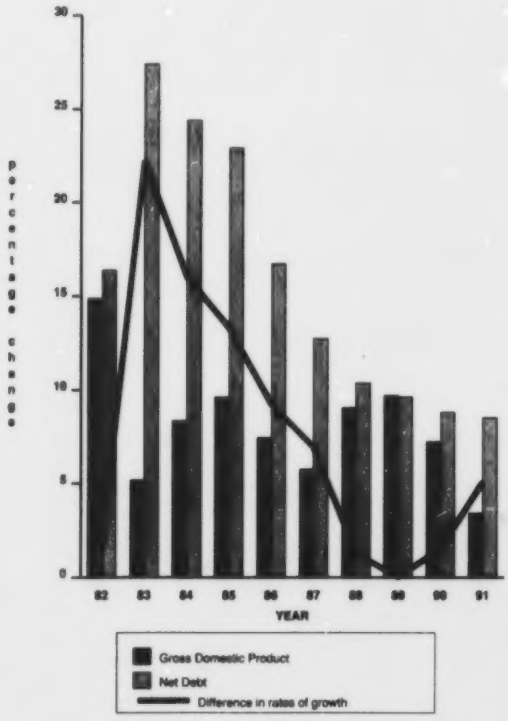
1991	30,618	4.6	388,429	57.8

Factors Affecting the Deficit

The increase in the deficit of $1,622 million in 1990-91 was entirely due to the impact of interest rate developments on public debt charges. Public debt charges increased by $3,717 million in 1990-91 to $42,537 million. Interest rates rose significantly during the latter half of 1988-89 and remained high throughout both 1989-90 and 1990-91. Given the stock of debt, the compounding impact of these interest rate developments continued to push up public debt charges in 1990-91. Dampening the impact of these higher public debt charges on the deficit were the strength in personal income tax collections and the effects of discretionary policy actions introduced in past budgets which increased budgetary revenues and restrained the growth in program spending.

CHART A

GROSS DOMESTIC PRODUCT AND NET DEBT



Budgetary revenues in 1990-91 amounted to $119,353 million, up 5.0% from the level reported in 1989-90. The growth in budgetary revenues slowed considerably in 1990-91, reflecting the impact of the recession, particularly on corporate profits, and the transition to the Goods and Services Tax (GST).

Personal income tax revenues, the largest component of budgetary revenues, increased by 11.0% in 1990-91, down slightly from the increase of 12.8% recorded in 1989-90. The recession did not have a significant impact on personal incomes in 1990-91 --- personal incomes were up 7 1/2% in 1990 compared to an increase of 8% in 1989. In addition, personal income tax refunds in 1990-91 were over $0.7 billion lower than in 1989-90. This was largely due to the transitional impact of personal income tax reform. Although most of the personal income tax reform measures became effective January 1, 1988, withholding tables were not adjusted until July 1, 1988, with the result that personal income tax refunds were substantially higher in 1989-90.

Also contributing to the increase in budgetary revenues in 1990-91 were higher unemployment insurance contributions, up 18.3%, primarily reflecting increases in premium rates. Beginning in 1990, the financing provisions of the unemployment insurance program changed, whereby the full cost of the program is financed through employee-employer premiums. Previously, the federal government financed certain components of the program. As a result, premium rates were increased, effective January 1, 1990, which account for most of the year-over-year advance in unemployment insurance contributions. In addition, most of the increase of 15% in non-tax revenues was due to higher Bank of Canada profits and the Exchange Fund Account.

In contrast, both corporate income tax revenues and excise taxes and duties declined in 1990-91. Corporate income tax revenues declined 9.9% in 1990-91, as the recession had a pronounced effect on corporate profits. Rising unit labour costs, declining demand, and rising exchange rates reduced corporate profit margins to their lowest levels since the 1981-1982 recession. Corporate profits have declined steadily since the fourth quarter of 1988 and by the end of fiscal year 1990-91 were 65% below their pre-recession peak. However, the decline in collections has been less than the cumulative decline in profits, owing to the impact of the base-broadening measures introduced as part of the 1988 Income Tax Reform and the introduction of the Large Corporations Tax.

Excise taxes and duties, which include the federal manufacturers' sales tax (FST), the Goods and Services Tax (GST), customs import duties, and excise taxes, declined by 7.1% on a year-over-year basis. This decline is largely attributable to the replacement of the FST by the GST, effective January 1, 1991. There are a number of transitional costs associated with sales tax reform, which served to reduce the flow of excise taxes and duties during 1990-91. These include the repayment of FST paid on new and unused goods held in inventory as of December 31, 1990 and the prepayment of the low-income GST credit. These factors reduced excise taxes and duties by $1.8 billion in 1990-91. In addition, the remittance requirements are different for the GST and FST. Whereas, most large manufacturers were required to remit their FST liabilities twice a month to the Government, GST liabilities are remitted on a monthly, quarterly, or annual basis, based on the annual sales of the business. As a result, remittances were down significantly in January 1991, the month the GST was introduced. The impact of the recession on consumer demand and the phase-out of tariffs under the Canada-United States Free Trade Agreement also contributed to lower revenues in this component.

Budgetary expenditures were up 5.1%, or $7.3 billion, on a year-over-year basis. Public debt charges, the largest single component of budgetary expenditures, advanced by 9.6%, accounting for over half the overall increase in budgetary expenditures. Program spending --- that is total budgetary expenditure excluding public debt charges --- was up only 3.4%. The increase in public debt charges reflects the compounding effect of the high interest rates in the first half of 1990, coupled with the increase in the stock of debt.

The increase in program spending of 3.4% in 1990-91 was well below the rate of inflation of 4.8%, and slightly less than the average growth in program spending since 1984-85. Program spending growth since 1984-85 has increased at an annual average rate of only 3.6%. The increase in program spending in 1990-91 was largely attributable to the impact of the recession on the cyclically-sensitive components of spending, such as unemployment insurance benefits. However, the impact of these components was largely offset by expenditure reduction initiatives introduced in previous budgets.

The largest component of program spending --- transfers to persons --- advanced by 12.7% in 1990-91, primarily attributable to a 25.4% increase in unemployment insurance benefits as a result of the recession. Among the other programs within major transfers to persons, elderly benefit payments were up 6.0%, reflecting increases in both average benefits, which are indexed to quarterly changes in the consumer price index, and the eligible population base. Payments to Crown corporations were also higher.

Dampening the impact of these increases were lower transfer payments to other levels of government and on other program spending. Direct cash transfers to other levels of government declined between 1989-90 and 1990-91 as increases in Canada Assistance Plan transfers were offset by lower direct cash transfers under the Established Programs Financing (EPF) and equalization programs. Other major transfers were lower, as declines in subsidies for regional and industrial development and agriculture more than offset higher transfers to developing countries and to Indian and Inuit peoples. Other program spending, which primarily consists of wages and salaries and other operating costs, was also lower. The decline reflects the impact of the ongoing restraint measures introduced in past budgets and the adjustment to the allowance for the actuarial liability for employee pensions, due to both the revisions in economic assumptions and the wage strategy announced in the February 1991 budget.

Table 1.2 sets out the levels and changes in revenues, expenditures and the deficit over the last ten years.

Factors affecting Financial Requirements

The government's net financial requirements reflect not only the difference between budgetary revenues and expenditures, but also the net source of funds generated by non-budgetary and foreign exchange transactions. Non-budgetary transactions in 1990-91 provided $6,080 million, down $2,386 million from 1989-90. The lower source of funds in 1990-91 was primarily due to a downward adjustment to the allowance for the actuarial liability for employee pensions, due both to revisions in economic assumptions and the federal government's wage strategy announced in the February 1991 budget. Financial requirements, excluding foreign exchange transactions, therefore, amounted to $24,538 million, up $4,008 million from the 1989-90 requirement. As a percentage of GDP, financial requirements, excluding foreign exchange transactions, were 3.7% in 1990-91.

Foreign exchange transactions resulted in a net requirement of $4,895 million, up $4,198 million from 1989-90. Foreign exchange transactions are primarily directed towards promoting orderly conditions in the Canadian dollar exchange market. As a result, total financial requirements amounted to $29,433 million, up $8,206 million from the 1989-90 requirement. Unmatured debt transactions amounted to $30,490 million in 1990-91, primarily in the form of Treasury bills and marketable bonds. Cash balances at March 31, 1991 stood at $2,569 million, up $1,057 million from the level at March 31, 1990.

Table 1.3 sets out the financial requirements over the last ten years, while Table 1.4 sets out the major components of non-budgetary transactions for the same period.

SUPPLEMENTARY FINANCIAL INFORMATION

This part provides a ten year comparative summary of the Government's financial transactions, both on the Public Accounts basis and on the National Accounts basis. The Public Accounts presentation reflects the accounting policies explained in Note 1 to the audited financial statements in Section 2 of this volume. The National Accounts presentation is designed primarily to facilitate economic analysis of the federal Government sector on a basis consistent with that used in measuring income and expenditure flows in the economy.

Public Accounts Presentation

The "Summary Statement of Transactions" (Table 1.5) provides aggregate data on the major categories of transactions under four main headings: budgetary, non-budgetary, foreign exchange and unmatured debt. The resulting cash position at the end of each year is also shown.

National Accounts Presentation

The National Income and Expenditure Accounts were developed as a basis for economic analysis of income and expenditure flows in the economy. The concepts and definitions applied to the Government sector are consistent with those applied to other sectors and follow international practices developed under the aegis of the United Nations. The economic nature of a transaction is the determining factor in its classification within the National Accounts framework.

In 1990-91, the National Accounts deficit increased by $3,197 million or 13.9% from the 1989-90 level. This reflects a 6.2% increase in revenue and a 7.4% increase in expenditure.

[1] These "National Accounts transactions" are consistent with those released by Statistics Canada on August 31, 1991.

Public Accounts and National Accounts Reconciliation

The reconciliation of transactions between the Public Accounts and National Accounts is set out in the table that follows. The major factors which give rise to the need for a reconciliation are listed below.

The deficits of Government business enterprises which are outside the Government accounting entity are, for Public Accounts presentation purposes, met through budgetary appropriations and are, thus, recorded as budgetary expenditure. In the National Accounts presentation, these deficits are netted against Government investment income.

Revenue in the Public Accounts is recorded on a cash basis with the exception of the non-tax revenue . While the major portion of National Accounts revenue is accounted for on a cash basis, certain items, such as corporate income taxes and the oil export charges, are reported on an accrual basis. This difference also results in a different treatment of the acceleration of source deductions and sales and excise taxes by large firms.

Transactions of employee pension accounts are treated as non-budgetary in the Public Accounts, although the Government's contributions to, and interest payments on, these accounts are included in expenditure. Employer and employee contributions to these accounts, plus any related interest income, form part of Government revenue in the National Accounts presentation, and pension payments form part of Government expenditure.

In the Public Accounts presentation, the purchase of capital assets such as buildings and machinery is recorded as a budgetary expenditure in the year of acquisition. Only newly produced capital assets and capital expenditures are included in National Accounts expenditure. The National Accounts also ignore the sale of capital assets as such sales are not deemed to give rise to production. Both Government revenue and expenditure include an allowance for the depreciation of capital assets in the National Accounts termed "Capital consumption allowance". This item is not a part of Public Accounts reporting.

Both the Public Accounts and the National Accounts include the financial activities of the consolidated Crown corporations. However, the inclusions are not identical.

PREFACE TO THE AUDITED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF CANADA

The fundamental purpose of the financial statements is to provide information to Parliament, and thus to the public, to facilitate an understanding and evaluation of the full nature and extent of the financial affairs and resources for which the Government is responsible. The financial statements reflect the financial position of the Government at the reporting date, as well as its results of operations, financial requirements and changes in financial position for the year.

The two basic concepts underlying the Government's accounting system are found in the Constitution Acts: first, that all duties and revenues received, other than those reserved to the provinces, "shall form One Consolidated Revenue Fund"; second, that the balance of the Fund, after certain prior charges, "shall be appropriated by the Parliament of Canada".

The financial statements consist of five statements and accompanying notes.

The first statement is the Statement of Transactions, which shows the extent to which cash going out from the Government exceeded cash coming in (financial requirements), and the resulting net new borrowing. The financial transactions are classified into the following categories:

- Budgetary transactions are all transactions with outside parties which enter into the calculation of the annual deficit or surplus of the Government, that is, tax and non-tax revenue, together with expenditures.

- Non-budgetary transactions are all transactions in loans, investments and advances, in liabilities for the administration of certain public money received or collected for special purposes, and in all other liabilities, other than those related to foreign exchange and unmatured debt.

- Foreign exchange transactions are all transactions in international reserves held in the Exchange Fund Account (the principal objective of which is to aid in the control and protection of the external value of the Canadian dollar), accounting for the net position of the Government with respect to the International Monetary Fund, and unmatured debt payable in foreign currencies.

- Unmatured debt transactions show increases or decreases in unmatured debt, that is, the net change in amounts owing for marketable bonds, Canada savings bonds, special non-marketable bonds issued to the Canada Pension Plan Investment Fund and Treasury bills. They exclude unmatured debt payable in foreign currencies.

The second statement is the Statement of Accumulated Deficit, which reflects the net accumulation of annual deficits and surpluses since Confederation. Because of the restatement of prior period results, the accumulated deficit at the beginning of the year, shown for 1990 and 1991, has been restated.

The third statement is the Statement of Revenue and Expenditure, which presents the Government's revenue and expenditure (results of operations) for the year.

The fourth statement is the Statement of Assets and Liabilities. This statement discloses the Government's cash balances and investments, and amounts owing to and by the Government at the end of the year. It differs in some ways from a conventional private sector balance sheet. Two major differences that are not reported on this statement are fixed assets, having been accounted for as expenditures, and tax revenues which are reported on a cash basis. The difference, therefore, between total assets and total liabilities is simply the aggregate of annual budgetary deficits and surpluses determined in accordance with the accounting policies of the Government.

The fifth statement is the Statement of Changes in Financial Position, which provides information on the Government's cash requirements for operating and investing activities, and how these activities were financed.

Other sections in this volume, together with Volumes II and III of the Public Accounts, are designed to provide more detailed information in respect of matters reported in the financial statements. The opinion of the Auditor General on the financial statements does not extend to these other sections and volumes of the Public Accounts.

STATEMENT OF RESPONSIBILITY

The financial statements in this section were prepared by the Government of Canada in accordance with the accounting policies set out in Note 1 to the statements and on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

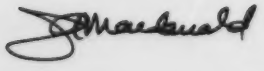
Responsibility for the integrity and objectivity of the financial statements rests with the Government. The financial statements are prepared under the joint direction of the President of the Treasury Board, the Minister of Finance, and the Receiver General for Canada, in compliance with governing legislation. The financial statements are generally prepared on an accrual basis of accounting; a notable exception is that tax revenues are reported on a cash basis. Furthermore, fixed assets are charged to budgetary expenditure at the time of acquisition or construction. The information included in these financial statements is based on the Government's best estimates and judgement, with due consideration given to materiality.

To fulfill its accounting and reporting responsibilities, the Government maintains systems of financial management and internal control which give due consideration to costs, benefits and risks, and which are designed to provide reasonable assurance that transactions are properly authorized by Parliament, are executed in accordance with prescribed regulations, and are properly recorded so as to maintain accountability of public money and safeguard the assets and properties of Canada under Government administration. The Receiver General for Canada maintains the accounts of Canada, a centralized record of the Government's financial transactions, and obtains additional information as required, from departments, agencies and Crown corporations, to meet accounting and reporting requirements.

The Auditor General of Canada provides an independent opinion on the financial statements prepared by the Government as presented in this section of Volume I. The duties of the Auditor General in that respect are contained in section 6 of the Auditor General Act which states in part that the Auditor General shall express his opinion as to whether the financial statements present fairly information in accordance with stated accounting policies of the federal government and on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year together with any reservations he may have. Additional information is provided in the observations at the end of this section.

Annually, the financial statements are tabled in Parliament as part of the Public Accounts, and are referred to the Standing Committee on Public Accounts, which reports to Parliament on the results of its examination together with any recommendations it may have with respect to the financial statements and accompanying audit opinion.

On behalf of the Government of Canada.



J.A. MACDONALD

Notes to the Financial Statements of the Government of Canada

1. Significant Accounting Policies

i. Government of Canada as a reporting entity

As a reporting entity, the Government of Canada comprises all organizations which are owned or controlled by the Government and which are accountable for the administration of their affairs and resources either to a minister of the Government or directly to Parliament.

ii. Method of accounting for Government organizations

Except for enterprise Crown corporations, which are accounted for by the cost method, all Government organizations are accounted for in the financial statements by consolidation. Enterprise Crown corporations are defined as those corporate organizations which are not dependent on parliamentary appropriations, and whose principal activity is the sale of goods and services to outside parties.

iii. Classification of financial transactions

The financial transactions of the Government are classified as budgetary, non-budgetary, foreign exchange and unmatured debt transactions.

Budgetary transactions enter into the calculation of the annual deficit or surplus and are reported on the Statement of Revenue and Expenditure. All other transactions lead to the acquisition or disposal of financial claims or to the creation or discharge of financial obligations, and are disclosed in the Statement of Assets and Liabilities.

Comparative figures are reclassified retroactively to conform to the current year's presentation.

iv. Budgetary transactions

On the Statement of Revenue and Expenditure, revenue and expenditure are reported both gross and net. The difference between the two is revenue from outside parties credited to appropriations and revenue of consolidated Crown corporations credited to expenditure.

Revenue

Tax revenue is reported net of refunds, and excludes taxes collected on behalf of provinces and territories, and amounts credited to other liability accounts.

The Government generally reports tax revenue in the year in which it is received. Refunds of tax revenue are allocated to the year in which the processing cycle for the assessment of the related tax return has been started.

Non-tax revenue is reported in the year in which the transactions or events that give rise to the revenue occur.

Expenditure

Expenditure includes charges for work performed, goods received, services rendered, and transfer payments made during the year. Expenditure may also include net charges related to allowances for the valuation of assets, for general contingencies, for borrowings of agent enterprise Crown corporations, and for other liabilities.

v. Assets

Assets are defined as the financial claims acquired by the Government on outside parties. However, as a result of the Government's accounting policies described above, certain financial claims are not reported on the Statement of Assets and Liabilities. The most important of these is tax revenue receivable.

The fixed assets of the Government, which include land, engineering structures, buildings, machinery and equipment, are charged to budgetary expenditure at the time of acquisition or construction.

vi. Liabilities

Liabilities are defined as financial obligations of the Government to outside organizations and individuals as a result of events and transactions that occurred on or before the accounting date.

The borrowings of all agent enterprise corporations are recorded as a liability of the Government, net of borrowings expected to be repaid directly by these corporations.

vii. Valuation of assets and liabilities

Assets

Assets are recorded at cost and are subject to annual valuation to reflect reductions from the recorded value to the estimated realizable value. In the case of loans to sovereign states, the Government views these loans as collectible unless formally repudiated by the debtor. The allowance for valuation includes reductions from the recorded value of loans (and subscriptions to international organizations that make similar loans) with significant concessionary terms.

The Government's gold reserves are included in the International reserves held in the Exchange Fund Account and are recorded and valued at the Canadian dollar equivalent of 35 Special Drawing Rights per fine ounce. Gold reserves are discussed in more detail in Note 10.

Liabilities

Liabilities are recorded at the amounts ultimately payable. Termination benefits, superannuation plans and Government Annuities Account are reported on an actuarial basis. Superannuation obligations are discussed in more detail in Note 12.

viii. Allowances for general contingencies

The Government establishes allowances in respect of potential debt or debt service relief measures for financially troubled countries under multilateral agreements. These allowances are included, as appropriate, in the allowance for valuation of assets and the allowance for borrowings of agent enterprise Crown corporations.

ix. Translation of foreign currency transactions

Foreign currency transactions are translated and recorded in Canadian dollar equivalents at the exchange rates prevailing at the transaction dates.

Assets and liabilities resulting from foreign currency transactions are, in turn, reported at year end closing rates of exchange; net gains are credited to revenue, while net losses are charged to expenditure.

2. Authorities for Transactions

The right of Canada to raise taxes and revenues is contained in the Constitution Acts, and is given specific form in various Acts passed by Parliament. Revenue can be raised and moneys can be spent or borrowed by the Government only with the authority of Parliament. All receipts of money by departments and agencies must be deposited into the Consolidated Revenue Fund (CRF). All disbursements from the CRF for spending on operations, for loans, investments and advances, and for the redemption of matured debt, must be authorized by Parliament, through annual appropriation acts and other statutes.

Wholly-owned Crown corporations that are agents of Her Majesty also may borrow only as authorized by Acts of Parliament. Such Acts usually place a ceiling on the amount of borrowings that can be outstanding at any one time. Non-agent Crown corporations can borrow without specific parliamentary authority. Non-agent borrowings are sometimes guaranteed by the Government with the authority of Parliament.

3. Spending and Borrowing Authorities

i. Source and disposition of spending authorities

The following table summarizes the authorities made available by Parliament and used by the Government for expenditure and for loans, investments and advances.

	(in millions of dollars)
	1991		1990
	Expenditure (budgetary)	Loans, investments and advances (non-budgetary)	Expenditure (budgetary)	Loans, investments and advances (non-budgetary)

Details (unaudited) can be found in Tables 5 and 6, Section 1 of Volume II (Part I) of the Public Accounts.

ii. Reconciliation of expenditure authority

The use of budgetary authority as reported in the above table differs from net total expenditure reported on the Statement of Revenue and Expenditure. Certain specified purpose accounts and certain Crown corporations are consolidated with the Government's financial statements but are not included in the budgetary authorities available for use as shown above. In addition, the authorities above do not include the provision for valuation of assets and liabilities, which is authorized by Section 63 of the Financial Administration Act. These differences are summarized below.

[1] In the current year, $1,725 million was reversed ($1,375 million was provided for in 1990) and no asset was written-off ($660 million was written-off in 1990). In the current year, there is no effect on the provision due to the consolidation of Crown corporations. The effect of -$50 million in 1990, due to the consolidation, is not included in the $715 million for 1990 but is included as part of the $212 million on the effect of consolidating Crown corporations.

iii. Overexpenditure of spending authority

The following votes were overexpended. Most of the amounts represent liabilities incurred but not paid at the fiscal year end. In the next fiscal year, spending authority for each equivalent appropriation is reduced by the amount of those liabilities.

4. Revenue

i. Personal income tax

The following table presents details of personal income tax revenue as classified in the Statement of Revenue and Expenditure:

	(in millions of dollars)
	1991	1990
Income tax
Personal	60,434	54,909
Less: refundable tax credits child tax credits	2,094	2,444
sales tax credits	727	542
investment tax credits	12	28
Total	57,601	51,895

ii. Refundable tax credits

Entitlements to refundable tax credits are claimed on personal and corporate income tax returns and are settled either by reducing the tax liability for the year or, if no liability exists, by issuing a "refund" cheque. In either case, income tax revenues are reduced, even where no tax has been paid. Had the tax reductions and direct payments been reported as expenditures, gross total expenditure and income tax revenue would have increased accordingly.

iii. Excise taxes and duties

The following table presents details of excise taxes and duties as classified in the Statement of Revenue and Expenditure:

	(in millions of dollars)
	1991	1990
Goods and services tax	3,369
Less: quarterly tax credits	598
refunds	2

	19,568	23,568
Customs import duties	4,001	4,587
Total	26,143	28,155

On January 1, 1991, a multi-stage broadly-based tax, the Goods and Services Tax (GST) was introduced. Since the GST is applicable only to the fiscal quarter, January 1 to March 31, 1991, the amounts reported for the fiscal year represent only a small proportion of a full year's anticipated revenue. The revenue reported represents remittances received during February and March 1991. The GST reported in the Statement of Revenue and Expenditure is net of all credits, refunds and rebates.

With the introduction of the GST, the Federal Sales Tax (FST) ceased to have general application after December 31, 1990. Amendments were passed to phase out the existing FST. The FST reported in the Statement of Revenue and Expenditure is net of refunds and the special inventory rebates of the phased-out provisions. These special rebates as at March 31, 1991 amounted to $1,053 million.

Other excise taxes and duties are levied on alcoholic beverages and tobacco products. In addition, excise taxes are imposed on other items such as jewelry, passenger vehicles, air conditioners and telecommunications programming services.

iv. Non-tax revenue

The following are details of non-tax revenue as shown in the Statement of Revenue and Expenditure:

	(in millions of dollars)
	1991	1990
Return on investments
Loans, investments and advances	4,487	3,850
Foreign exchange accounts	2,269	1,672
Other	51	328
	6,807	5,850
Other non-tax revenue	2,718	2,461
Total	9,525	8,311

Other non-tax revenue is comprised principally of refunds of previous years' expenditure, services and service fees, privileges, licences and permits, proceeds from sale of capital assets, current goods and services and domestic coinage.

5. Expenditure

i. Transfer payments

The Government makes transfer payments to persons, other levels of government, enterprises, non-profit institutions, international organizations and foreign countries.

Payments to persons essentially constitute an income security framework. Individuals are provided with assistance because of their age (Old Age Security and Family Allowances), because they are temporarily unemployed (Unemployment Insurance), or for other specific purposes.

Payments are made to other levels of government for numerous transfer programs operated by the federal Government under various statutory authorities, including equalization payments and payments for health care, education, and grants in lieu of taxes.

Payments to enterprises include agricultural subsidies for freight, grain storage, oil and gas subsidies for offshore oil and gas development, incentives, oil import compensation, and freight rate subsidies to railway and transportation companies under various statutory Acts.

Payments are made to international organizations that provide development assistance, military protection, and satellite communications. Payments to foreign countries are for official development assistance in the purchase of goods and services. As well, food aid payments are made to international institutions for the benefit of recipients in developing countries.

Payments to non-profit institutions are to universities in aid of research, to non-profit organizations for research and development, and to various national organizations.

The following is a more detailed summary of transfer payments as shown in the Statement of Revenue and Expenditure:

7. Accumulated Deficit

i. Restatement of prior period

In 1991, the following adjustments resulted in restatement of prior period results:

An adjustment has been made to correct an error of $1,400 million in the estimated allowance for the actuarial liability for employee pensions. This error related to the inclusion for benefit purposes of some non-pensionable service of certain employees. The entire amount of the error is applicable to years prior to fiscal year 1983-84. The accumulated deficit at the beginning of 1990-91 and 1989-90 has been restated to reflect the retroactive correction of the error.

The issue of treasury shares of Petro-Canada authorized by the Petro-Canada Public Participation Act took place shortly after the 1990-91 year end. This has allowed the Government to determine with more precision the value of its investment in Petro-Canada. Accordingly, the net book value of the Government's investment in Petro-Canada has been adjusted to $2,249 million to reflect the revised estimated net realizable value. The accumulated deficit at the beginning of the current and previous year has been restated for this adjustment which relates to fiscal years 1981 to 1984, the years that the investments were made in Petro-Canada.

The effect of these adjustments, on the accumulated deficit at the beginning of the current and previous year, is as follows:

	(in millions of dollars) 1991	1990
Allowance for actuarial liability for employee pensions	–1,400	–1,400
Allowance for valuation of assets	1,250	1,250
Decrease in accumulated deficit at the beginning of the year due to restatement of prior period figures	–150	–150

ii. Current year

In accordance with its stated accounting policies, the Government includes in its revenues and expenditures the transactions of certain specified purpose accounts and Crown corporations. Legislation requires that the revenue of specified purpose accounts be earmarked and that related payments be charged against such revenue. Any deficiency of payments over revenue must be met through future revenue. The following table shows the balances of these specified purpose accounts and the retained earnings of the consolidated Crown corporations included in the accumulated deficit:

	(in millions of dollars) 1991	1990

Details (unaudited) of the consolidated accounts can be found in Section 5 of this volume.

8. Crown Corporations

i. Consolidated Crown corporations

Consolidated Crown corporations are wholly-owned Crown corporations and their wholly-owned subsidiaries which rely on Government funding as their principal source of revenue.

A total of 33 Crown corporations were consolidated in 1991 (29 in 1990). The principal consolidated Crown corporations are: Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, Marine Atlantic Inc., and VIA Rail Canada Inc.

ii. Enterprise Crown corporations

As disclosed in Note 1*ii*, enterprise Crown corporations are not consolidated in the Government's financial statements but are accounted for by the cost method. The principal enterprise Crown corporations are reported separately on the Statement of Assets and Liabilities.

The following tables set out the assets, liabilities, revenues and expenditures/expenses of the Government and of enterprise Crown corporations.

The tables present the financial transactions and results of operations of the enterprise Crown corporations in accordance with, in most cases, generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP) used by private sector companies. Under GAAP, non-financial assets such as buildings, machinery, equipment and inventories are reflected as assets and written off over their useful lives or as they are consumed or used. The Government treats the acquisition of non-financial assets as expenditures in the year of acquisition.

For those enterprise Crown corporations whose year end is March 31, the data are based on audited financial statements. For those corporations having other year ends, the data are based on unaudited interim financial statements which have been prepared on a basis consistent with their most recent audited financial statements.

The corporate financial statements of each enterprise and other consolidated Crown corporations are reproduced in Volume III.

9. International Development Assistance—Loans, Subscriptions, Contingent Liabilities and Commitments

i. Loans to developing countries

Included in loans to National governments—$3,476 million ($3,495 million in 1990)—are loans to developing countries of $2,309 million ($2,369 million in 1990). These loans arose from agreements signed before April 1, 1986 and are either at low interest rates or are interest-free. All similar loans disbursed after April 1, 1986 have been treated as budgetary expenditures. The balances outstanding at March 31, grouped by term, are:

Original term	Grace period before repayment commences	Interest rate	(in millions of dollars) 1991	1990
20 years	5 years	5%	23	25

55 years[1]	15 years	*	8	8
			2,309	2,369

* Interest-free.
[1] Rescheduled loans.

The terms of these loans confer financial benefits on the recipients and have been fully provided for in the allowance for valuation of assets. Details (unaudited) can be found in Section 6 of this volume.

ii. Subscriptions and loans to international organizations

Loans, investments and advances to international organizations—$4,898 million ($4,666 million in 1990)—include subscriptions to the capital of the International Development Association and loans to other international financial institutions of $4,198 million ($4,007 million in 1990). These loans are shown net after deduction of notes payable of $2,077 million ($1,882 million in 1990), including $2,046 million ($1,852 million in 1990) of notes payable to the aforementioned association and institutions. The notes are non-interest bearing and non-negotiable, but are payable on demand, although normally encashed within seven years. The international financial institutions make loans to developing countries on beneficial terms. Subscriptions to international organizations do not provide a return on investment but are repayable on termination of the organization or withdrawal from it. Details (unaudited) can be found in Section 6 of this volume.

The allowance for valuation includes an amount of $2,152 million ($2,155 million in 1990), which represents the Government's net position relative to these institutions.

iii. Contingent liabilities and commitments

Contingent liabilities under international development assistance result from agreements entered into by the Government that will result in the future disbursement of funds if a potential event occurs. The Government has contingent liabilities for callable subscriptions related to shares purchased in certain international development institutions. As at March 31, 1991, these contingent liabilities amounted to $8,425 million ($7,418 million as at March 31, 1990). The Government has also issued lines of credit to international development institutions to finance future lending. As at March 31, 1991, contingent liabilities under these lines of credit amounted to $1,385 million ($1,358 million as at March 31, 1990).

The Government has also entered into agreements with international organizations and other sovereign nations, committing it to disburse funds in future years for specified purposes. These include loans to national governments and international development institutions that have been approved, but not yet disbursed. These commitments amounted to $1,107 million as at March 31, 1991 ($1,421 million as at March 31, 1990). The Government is also committed, as at March 31, 1991, to disburse $810 million in future ($998 million as at March 31, 1990) to subscribe to additional shares in international development institutions. With this commitment, the Government has also incurred contingent liabilities in respect of future callable subscriptions. As at March 31, 1991, these amounted to $2,861 million ($3,284 million as at March 31, 1990).

Details (unaudited) on international development assistance commitments and contingent liabilities can be found in Section 6 of this volume. Other commitments and contingent liabilities are discussed separately in Notes 14 and 16 respectively.

10. Gold

Included in the international reserves of $19,066 million ($15,393 million in 1990) held in the Exchange Fund Account are Canada's gold holdings of 14.57 million fine ounces with a recorded value of $792 million (15.92 million fine ounces with a recorded value of $848 million in 1990).

Gold is valued at the Canadian dollar equivalent of 35 Special Drawing Rights (SDRs) per fine ounce, which approximates its cost in foreign currency terms. The SDR is a unit of account used by the International Monetary Fund and is valued in terms of a "basket" of five major currencies. At March 31, 1991, the Canadian dollar equivalent of 35 SDRs was $54.33 per fine ounce ($53.25 per fine ounce in 1990).

Alternative bases of valuation could be used to value gold. On a market value basis ($411.74 per fine ounce in 1991, $430.96 in 1990), the recorded value would have been $5,999 million ($6,861 million in 1990). On the basis of an estimated average acquisition cost in Canadian dollars at historical rates of exchange $36.91 per fine ounce in both 1991 and 1990, the recorded value would have been $538 million ($588 million in 1990). Further details can be found in the financial statements of the Exchange Fund Account, included in Section 9 of this volume.

11. Canada Pension Plan

Under existing legislation, payments of benefits and costs for the Canada Pension Plan are financed from contributions from employees, employers and self-employed persons, and from interest from the investment of funds not immediately needed for benefits and costs. Although the Plan was set up under federal legislation, it is under the joint control of the Government and the included provinces. Under existing legislation, any significant amendments (e.g. proposed enactment to alter the general level of benefits or the rate of contributions) requires agreement by at least two-thirds of the included provinces having an aggregate of not less than two thirds of the population. The Government's authority to pay benefits under the Plan is limited to the balance in the Canada Pension Plan Account which was $41,120 million at March 31, 1991. In accordance with the accounting policies of the Government, the revenues and expenditures of the Plan ($12.4 billion and $10.7 billion respectively) have not been reported with those of the Government.

The financial statements of the Account are reproduced in Section 7 of this volume.

12. Superannuation Accounts

Defined benefit pension plans for substantially all Government full-time employees, principally members of the Public Service, the Canadian Forces and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP) have been established by legislation. The Government has obligations for these plans. It also has obligations for several other pension plans. The two most significant ones cover all members of Parliament and federally appointed judges.

The legislation provides that all superannuation obligations arising from these plans be met but separate funds are not maintained.

Pension expenditure is included in the Statement of Revenue and Expenditure as a component of other program expenditures. Pension interest is included in public debt expenditure.

i. Pension plans

Basic pensions are generally based on the best six consecutive years' average earnings and are accrued at 2 percent of these average earnings per year of service, to a maximum of 70 percent of final average earnings. Basic pensions are indexed annually (on January 1) to the cost of living, under authority of the Supplementary Retirement Benefits Act.

Employee contributions for these benefits are 6 1/2 percent of pay, less contributions to the Canada or Quebec Pension Plan, plus 1 percent of pay towards indexing. For basic benefits, the employer matches equally the prior year's employee contributions for members of the Public Service, and contributes 1.8 and 2 times current year's contributions for members of the Canadian Forces and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police respectively. Indexation contributions are matched equally. As well, indexing payments in excess of pensionners' credits in the indexing account are charged directly to expenditure.

The Public Service Superannuation Act also covers the employees of certain Crown corporations, agencies and other institutions. Pension obligations for Crown corporations covered by the Public Service Superannuation Act are limited to matching their employees' contribution; any actuarial deficiency is borne by the Government.

Contributions are credited to the superannuation accounts. The basic accounts earn interest at rates that are based on Government of Canada long-term bond rate. The indexation accounts earn interest at rates based on the five-year Government of Canada bond rate. The interest rate earned by the basic accounts was about 11 percent in both 1991 and 1990. The rate for the indexation accounts in 1991 was 10.8 percent (9.8 percent for 1990).

ii. Actuarial valuations

As required under the Public Pensions Reporting Act, actuarial valuations are performed triennially on the five major pension plans including the related benefits payable under the Supplementary Retirement Benefits Act and the related assets of the Supplementary Retirement Benefits Account using the projected benefit method prorated on pensionable service under their respective Acts.

The most recent review date for the actuarial valuation for each plan was prepared as follows:

Public Service Pension Plan — December 31, 1989;

Canadian Forces Pension Plan — December 31, 1987;

Royal Canadian Mounted Police Pension Plan — December 31, 1989;

Pension Plan for federally appointed judges—December 31, 1988;

Members of Parliament retiring allowances — December 31, 1988.

As at March 31, 1991, the actuarial reports for the Public Service Pension Plan and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Pension Plan were not tabled before Parliament.

Pension obligations, for accounting purposes, are determined on an actuarial basis and incorporate the government's best estimates of future economic events such as inflation rates, interest rates and wages and salary increases. They incorporate, initially, the effects of current economic conditions which are blended gradually into long-term economic assumptions. The expected long-term assumptions beginning in eight years are estimated to be (compared with assumptions used in previous year):

	(in millions of dollars)
	1991	1990
Interest rate on new money	5	6
Inflation rate	2	3.5
General wage increase	2.5	4.8

Even minor variations in these assumptions can result in a significantly higher, or lower, estimate of additional liabilities. For example, an increase of 1 percent in the inflation rate would result in an increase in pension liabilities of $6,100 million. The same percentage increase in interest rates would reduce pension liabilities by $9,200 million.

The indexing element of the Government's pension plan is valued in its account on a pay as-you-go basis. A supplementary allowance is used to record any shortfall, as determined on an actuarial basis.

iii. Allowance for the actuarial liability for employee pensions

As a result of the annual actuarial valuation for accounting purposes, adjustments were required to the allowance to reflect:

- an overstatement of $1,400 million as described in Note 7 i.,
- a reduction of $1,367 million which recognizes a permanent reduction from last year in the long-term pension liabilities due to the implementation of wage restraint throughout the Public Service, and
- a reduction of $533 million for the amortization of estimation adjustments due to changes in experience and in actuarial assumptions leaving $6,100 million to be amortized in future years.

The following table provides details of the allowance for actuarial liability for employee pensions as at March 31:

	(in millions of dollars)

[1] Canada savings bonds are redeemable on demand.

Substantially all Government debt is issued at fixed rates. The Government has, however, entered into interest rate and currency swap agreements to facilitate management of the risks associated with its interest rate and foreign currency exposure. At March 31, 1991, the Government had interest swap agreements of U.S. $1,625 million, Yen 60,000 million and CDN $5,275 million in notional principal. Under these agreements, which expire between 1991 and 2001, fixed interest rate commitments have been converted to variable rates (tied to LIBOR or Banker's Acceptance).

Currency swap agreements at March 31, 1991 have converted future exchange risks of 100,000 million Yen debt to U.S. $676 million debt.

The interest paid or payable and the interest received or receivable on all swap transactions is recorded as part of the public debt in the Statement of Revenue and Expenditure.

Foreign currency amounts are translated to the Canadian dollar equivalent at year end. At year end, foreign currency borrowings included the following:

	(in millions of dollars)
	1991	1991	1990
Currency	Face value	Canadian $ equivalent	Canadian $ equivalent

[1] The 1991 Canadian $ equivalent is comprised of the conversion of Yen debt 100,000 million (180,000 million in 1990) and 676 million (1,086 million in 1990) U.S. dollar swap risks.

14. Contractual Commitments

The nature of the Government's activities requires it to enter into contracts that are significant in relation to its current financial position or that will materially affect the level of future expenditure. Contractual commitments are classified in the following four categories: fixed assets, purchases, operating leases and capital leases.

All contractual commitments of $100 million or more per project or individual contract if not part of a project at year end, are reported for fixed assets, purchases and operating leases. All capital lease arrangements with total minimum lease payments remaining at year end in excess of $1 million per contract are reported.

The Government's commitments with respect to international development assistance are discussed separately in Note 9 iii.

The following are the contractual commitments at March 31, 1991, including those of consolidated Crown corporations where indicated, which will result in substantial outlays in future years.

15. Insurance Programs

Three Crown corporations operate insurance programs as agents of Her Majesty. These programs are intended to be self-sustaining, but in the event that the corporations do not have sufficient funds to meet their obligations, the Government provides the required financing through appropriations, either budgetary or non-budgetary. The Government is of the opinion that no allowance need be established in its financial statements for these insurance programs.

The Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation (CDIC) provides insurance on deposits with member banks and trust and loan companies for up to $60,000 per depositor per institution. Total insured deposits at March 31, 1991 were $291,400 million ($233,022 million at March 31, 1990). Although there is a deficiency in the Deposit Insurance Fund of $679 million ($888 million at March 31, 1990), the Government is of the opinion that, based on current information, CDIC will, over time, eliminate its deficiency without budgetary support from the Government.

The Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation administers the Mortgage Insurance Fund (MIF). The MIF provides insurance for mortgage lending on Canadian housing by private institutions. Insurance in force at March 31, 1991 was $53,680 million ($49,830 million at March 31, 1990). Budgetary financial assistance is provided by the Government only to the extent required. The MIF's surplus at March 31, 1991 was $187 million ($83 million in 1990) and the recent excess of receipts over disbursements has resulted in investments in securities of $923 million at March 31, 1991 ($568 million in 1990).

The Export Development Corporation provides export and foreign investment insurance for the purpose of facilitating and developing export trade. Insurance in force at March 31, 1991 was $4,999 million ($4,326 million in 1990). The Corporation's premium revenues have been adequate to provide for the full costs of claims experienced to date and to establish an allowance for possible future claims based on past claims experience.

This information has not been audited since the information provided is derived from interim financial statements of the three corporations. The most recent annual financial statements of these corporations and their insurance funds can be found in Volume III of the Public Accounts. Details (unaudited) of the transactions for these three insurance programs for the year ended March 31, 1991 can be found in Section 11 of this volume.

16. Contingent Liabilities of the Government of Canada

The contingent liabilities of the Government consist of potential losses from the exercise of explicit guarantees and from claims and pending and threatened litigation related to native land claims and treaty rights, breach of contract, damages to persons and property, and like items. If they become actual liabilities, they are recorded in the accounts in the fiscal year in which that occurs. Specific amounts are reported when available. Where specific amounts are not available, estimates of potential liability are used, if determinable. Items for which no reasonable estimate can be made are not included.

The amounts are summarized as follows:

	(in millions of dollars)
	1991	1990
i) Explicit guarantees by the Government:
Borrowings by non-agent Crown corporations	(1)	(1)
Borrowings by other than Crown corporations	5,708	5,128
Insurance programs of the Government	1,034	1,087
Other explicit guarantees	2,252	136
ii) Claims and pending and threatened litigation	15,856	10,489
iii) Comprehensive native land claims	1,248	1,964
iv) Consolidated Crown corporations	82	196
	26,180	19,000

Further details (unaudited), including particulars of explicit guarantees, authorized limits and information on previous claims, unquantified items and letters of comfort, can be found in Section 11 of this volume.
(1) Less than $500,000.

Contingent liabilities with respect to international development assistance are discussed in Note 9 iii.

Explicit guarantees

These are amounts guaranteed by specific agreement or legislation. Insurance programs of agent Crown corporations are not considered to be contingent liabilities since they are currently supported by fees or premiums and are intended to be self-funding. Amounts represented by letters of comfort are not included since they are not explicit guarantees of payment.

Claims and pending and threatened litigation

This category includes claims received and claims which are actually under litigation, or may be litigated, for which specific amounts are claimed or potential settlements can be quantified. It includes amounts in respect of native claims, breach of contract, expropriation, losses or damage related to property, and like items. A major part of these claims is made up of native claims related to statutory and treaty obligations. Approximately four hundred and fifty of these claims have not been quantified and are thus not included.

Comprehensive Native land claims

This category consists of claims where no treaty exists and includes claims which have been negotiated and are awaiting ratification by the recipient groups involved. Some 30 claims which are in negotiation or under review have not yet been quantified and are not included.

Consolidated Crown corporations

These are the contingent liabilities of appropriation dependent Crown corporations whose revenues, expenditures, assets and liabilities are reported with those of the Government.

OPINION OF THE AUDITOR GENERAL ON THE FINANCIAL STATEMENTS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF CANADA

To the House of Commons

I have audited the statement of assets and liabilities of the Government of Canada as at March 31, 1991 and the statements of revenue and expenditure, accumulated deficit, changes in financial position and transactions for the year then ended. These financial statements are the responsibility of the Government. My responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on my audit, as required by Section 6 of the Auditor General Act.

I conducted my audit in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that I plan and perform an audit to obtain reasonable assurance whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting policies used and significant estimates made by the Government, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation.

As set out below, I have three Reservations with respect to the fairness of these financial statements. They deal with what I believe is improper accounting for: the effect of short-term wage restraint on employee pensions; a reduction in the value of the investment in Petro-Canada; and, income tax revenue collected on behalf of provinces. If the Government adjusted the financial statements for the matters reported in these Reservations, the reported deficit for 1991 would be increased by up to $2.0 billion, liabilities would be increased by up to $800 million, and the accumulated deficit at the beginning of 1991 would be decreased by approximately $1.2 billion.

In my opinion, except for the effects of the matters reported in these Reservations, the accompanying financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the Government of Canada as at March 31, 1991 and the results of its operations, the changes in its financial position and its financial requirements for the year then ended, in accordance with the stated accounting policies of the Government of Canada as set out in Note 1 to the financial statements. As required by Section 6 of the Auditor General Act, I also report that, in my opinion, except for the effect of the matter reported in Reservation 2, these stated accounting policies have been applied, in all material respects, on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

Reservation 1: Improper accounting for the effect of short-term wage restraint on employee pensions

As stated in Note 12 (iii) to the financial statements, the government has reduced the reported liability for employee pensions by an estimated $1,367 million, based on certain assumptions as to the effect of short-term wage restraint throughout the Public Service. The full amount of this reduction has been offset against the 1991 deficit. In my view, this $1,367 million should have been recognized in equal annual amounts of approximately $100 million over the expected average remaining service lives of employees, as recommended by the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants' Public Sector Accounting and Auditing Committee. Had this been done, the reported liability for employee pensions and the deficit for 1991 would have increased by approximately $1.3 billion.

Reservation 2: Improper accounting for a reduction in the value of the investment in Petro-Canada

As explained in Note 7 (i), the allowance for valuation of the Government's investment in Petro-Canada has been increased by an estimated $1,250 million during 1991, bringing the total allowance for this investment to $2,050 million. The full amount of the $1,250 million increase during 1991 has been charged against deficits of prior years. This is the first time that annual revisions to the allowance for valuation of assets have been carried back to prior years. The initial $800 million allowance for the Government's investment in Petro-Canada was recorded in 1989 and included in the deficit of that year. In my view, the $1,250 million represents a change in an accounting estimate during 1991 which should have been charged to the deficit for 1991. Had this been done, the 1991 deficit would be increased by a further $1,250 million, with a corresponding decrease of $1,250 million in the accumulated deficit at the beginning of that year.

Reservation 3: Improper accounting for income tax revenue collected on behalf of provinces

As explained in Note 1 (iv), tax revenue excludes taxes collected on behalf of provinces and territories. Throughout the year, income tax collected by the government is split between federal and provincial shares on an estimated basis. Entitlements are finalized 12 months after the close of the fiscal year. No attempt is made to refine the allocation after the end of the year and prior to finalizing the financial statements, although information is available to do so. In my view, the government should have re-estimated the split between federal and provincial shares on the basis of assessment data to the end of August, and adjusted the financial statements accordingly. Had this been done, the deficit for 1991 and the provincial tax collection agreements account liability would each be reduced significantly. I have estimated that the reduction would be at least $500 million.

Additional information and comments on the financial statements and this opinion are included in my observations in the second part of this section.

OBSERVATIONS BY THE AUDITOR GENERAL ON THE FINANCIAL STATEMENTS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF CANADA

Introduction

The financial statements of the Government of Canada for the year ended March 31, 1991, and my audit opinion on them, are in the first part of this section. In this part of Section 2, I present additional information and comments on the government's financial statements and my audit opinion. In prior years, the Auditor General's observations on the government's financial statements were included in his annual Report to Parliament (chapter 2 in 1990).

The publication of audited financial statements for the government as a whole is not just a perfunctory exercise. The reported debt and deficit have significant implications for all Canadians. The audited statements should help Members of Parliament and others who read them to understand the government's financial condition and to assess policies and actions to improve it.

The mandate for my audit of the government's financial statements is contained in section 6 of the Auditor General Act. Section 6 states that "the Auditor General shall examine the several financial statements required by section 64 of the Financial Administration Act to be included in the Public Accounts, and any other statement that the President of the Treasury Board or the Minister of Finance may present for audit and shall express his opinion as to whether they present fairly information in accordance with stated accounting policies of the federal government and on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year together with any reservations he may have."

My audit opinion on the government's 1991 financial statements includes three significant Reservations. A qualified audit opinion is a serious matter. It cautions readers that the financial statements that the government has prepared can only be relied on if read in conjunction with the auditor's report.

The observations that follow provide additional explanatory information on the three Reservations in my 1991 audit opinion, and explain in more detail what my audit opinion means and how I arrived at it. I also comment on the work of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants' Public Sector Accounting and Auditing Committee (PSAAC), and on the need for a concise annual financial report for the federal government.

The Three Reservations In My 1991 Audit Opinion

Reservation 1: Improper accounting for the effect of short-term wage restraint on employee pensions

As stated in Note 12 (iii) to the financial statements, the government has reduced the reported liability for employee pensions by an estimated $1,367 million, based on certain assumptions as to the effect of short-term wage restraint throughout the Public Service. The full amount of this reduction has been offset against the 1991 deficit. In my view, this $1,367 million should have been recognized in equal annual amounts of approximately $100 million over the expected average remaining service lives of employees, as recommended by the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants' Public Sector Accounting and Auditing Committee (PSAAC). Had this been done, the reported liability for employee pensions and the deficit for 1991 would have increased by approximately $1.3 billion.

PSAAC's Accounting Statement 5 contains a number of recommendations dealing with how governments should account for and report their pension liabilities. For example, the effects of changes in actuarial assumptions are to be spread over the remaining working lives of employees rather than included in the deficit of the year in which the changes are made. This recognizes the tentative nature of adjustments such as the future effects of short-term wage restraint, and the fact that further adjustments will likely be required as employees approach retirement.

In 1991, the government made a significant change in actuarial assumptions. As disclosed in Note 12 (iii), the effect of this change was to reduce the liability for employee pensions by some $8 billion. $6.6 billion of this amount is being spread over the remaining working lives of employees as recommended by PSAAC. However, the remaining $1.367 billion has been offset against the 1991 deficit. This amount represents an estimate of the effect of lower wages over the next 3 years on pensions that will be paid many years later.

In my judgment, the $1.367 billion should also be spread over the remaining working lives of employees -- approximately 13 years as reported in Note 12 (iii). It is simply not possible to estimate with precision the effect of wage restraint on future pensions at this time. There are far too many uncertainties. For example, wage settlements in both the short and longer term may differ from targets. In my view, preventing adjustments such as the $1.367 billion is precisely what PSAAC had in mind when recommending that the effects of changes in actuarial assumptions be spread over future years.

A related concern is the extent to which the government has changed its actuarial assumptions from those used in prior years. In his most recent Actuarial Report on the pension plan for the Public Service, which was tabled in the House of Commons on October 11, 1991, the government's Chief Actuary commented on actuarial assumptions as follows:

> "If we adopted for this valuation economic assumptions derived from this 'current view of the future', their effect on the valuation results would be very significant as compared to the results that would have been obtained on the basis of economic assumptions adopted for the previous valuation which was done as at December 31, 1986. Because future economic conditions cannot be predicted with a high degree of probability, and because it is inadvisable to make large changes in assumptions from one actuarial review to the next, we decided, for this valuation, to modify the economic assumptions used in the previous actuarial review only part way to those that, on the basis of our research, would reflect the current view of expected future economic levels and relationships." (underline added)

If the Chief Actuary's assumptions had been used as at March 31, 1991, employee pension liabilities would have declined by only $3.7 billion, compared with the $8 billion reduction calculated by the government. I recognize that, as explained earlier, the effects of changes in actuarial assumptions are to be reflected and amortized in reported liabilities and the deficit over the remaining working lives of employees rather than all in one year. I also recognize that the estimation of such long-term liabilities is a subjective exercise, and that there is no absolutely correct answer. Nevertheless, it concerns me that the government has not used the Chief Actuary's assumptions when adjusting these significant liabilities.

All of this leads me to two key recommendations. First, that the government adjust its stated accounting policies and practices to conform fully with PSAAC's Accounting Statement 5. Second, that the government use the Chief Actuary's assumptions when estimating employee pension liabilities at year end. Implementation of these recommendations would help ensure that deficits and debt are measured and reported fairly and consistently from one year to the next.

Reservation 2: Improper accounting for a reduction in the value of the investment in Petro-Canada

As explained in Note 7 (i), the allowance for valuation of the Government's investment in Petro-Canada has been increased by an estimated $1,250 million during 1991, bringing the total allowance for this investment to $2,050 million. The full amount of the $1,250 million increase during 1991 has been charged against deficits of prior years. This is the first time that annual revisions to the allowance for valuation of assets have been carried back to prior years. The initial $800 million allowance for the Government's investment in Petro-Canada was recorded in 1989 and included in the deficit of that year. In my view, the $1,250 million represents a change in an accounting estimate during 1991 which should have been charged to the deficit for 1991. Had this been done, the 1991 deficit would be increased by a further $1,250 million, with a corresponding decrease of $1,250 million in the accumulated deficit at the beginning of that year.

In July of 1991, the government's ownership interest in Petro-Canada was reduced from 100 percent to approximately 80 percent. To effect this reduction, the corporation sold new shares (treasury shares) to outsiders at a price of $13 per share. The government then re-valued its remaining investment in the corporation to this price. $1,250 million was added to the $800 million already in the overall asset valuation allowance in respect of Petro-Canada. This brought the net book value of the government's investment in the corporation down to $2.3 billion -- $4,299 million as shown on the Statement of Assets and Liabilities less $2,050 million included in the allowance for valuation.

Last year, both the government and my office were satisfied, based on information available at that time, that the valuation allowance of $800 million in respect of Petro-Canada was reasonable. This year, the government determined that an additional allowance of $1,250 million is needed, and I have concluded that the further $1,250 million is reasonable. However, we disagree on the year in which the additional allowance should be included in the deficit.

The government has re-stated previously reported deficits rather than including the amount in the current year's deficit. This is the first time that revisions to an accounting estimate have been carried back to prior years rather than being charged to the current year. Generally speaking, I do not believe that this practice of "retroactive restatement" has any place in accountability reporting by governments. It can all too easily be used to hide the bottom line financial effects of significant and perhaps controversial government transactions.

PSAAC's Accounting Statement 4 recommends an approach to accounting for investments in Crown corporations that all but eliminates the need for valuation allowances to recognize declines in value. Under Statement 4, enterprise Crown corporations, such as Petro-Canada, would be included in the government reporting entity on what is known as the "modified equity" basis of accounting. Corporate net profits (or losses) would be included in the government's deficit when earned (or incurred), with a corresponding adjustment to the carrying value of the investment. The government would not be able to defer recognition of enterprise profits or losses to future years, or hide them in prior years.

The government's stated accounting policies do not, however, require investments in enterprise Crown corporations to be accounted for in this manner. Such corporations continue to be accounted for on the "cost" basis. Their net profits (or losses) are only included in the government's financial statements when they are paid over (or reimbursed). Declines in value are recognized through asset valuation allowances.

In my view, the government should do two things. First, adjust its stated accounting policies and practices to conform fully with PSAAC's Accounting Statement 4. Second, eliminate the practice of retroactive restatement, except when recognizing the effects of changes in accounting policy or correcting prior year errors. Implementation of these two recommendations would help ensure that the economic activities of enterprise Crown corporations are reflected fairly in the carrying value of investments and the deficit for the year.

Reservation 3: Improper accounting for income tax revenue collected on behalf of provinces

As explained in Note 1 (iv), tax revenue excludes taxes collected on behalf of provinces and territories. Throughout the year, income tax collected by the government is split between federal and provincial shares on an estimated basis. Entitlements are finalized 12 months after the close of the fiscal year. No attempt is made to refine the allocation after the end of the year and prior to finalizing the financial statements, although information is available to do so. In my view, the government should have re-estimated the split between federal and provincial shares on the basis of assessment data to the end of August, and adjusted the financial statements accordingly. Had this been done, the deficit for 1991 and the provincial tax collection agreements account liability would each be reduced significantly. I have estimated that the reduction would be at least $500 million.

The government's approach to reporting this significant liability has been to let adjustments fall into the subsequent year when entitlements are finalized with the provinces. The reason given for this approach is that, under the government's stated accounting policies, income tax revenue is reported in the year received, with no adjustment at the end of the year for amounts receivable or refunds owing.

However, under the accounting policy stated in Note 1 (vi), liabilities are defined as financial obligations to outside organizations and individuals as a result of events and transactions that occurred on or before the accounting date. As a consequence, the failure to adjust the liability to provinces for income tax collected on their behalf violates the government's stated accounting policy for recording and reporting liabilities.

But the issue is even broader. For some years, it has been widely recognized that the cash basis of accounting can lead to significant distortions in reported assets, liabilities, revenues and the deficit. Amounts shown in the summary statements can be affected significantly by factors that have nothing to do with economic activity during the reporting period. For example, delays at Revenue Canada in issuing refund cheques can inflate reported revenues. Similarly, changes in the basis of remitting income taxes at source can significantly affect reported revenues and the deficit.

In 1986, PSAAC issued Accounting Statement 3, which included the following recommendation:

> "Revenues should be accounted for in the period in which the transactions or events occurred that gave rise to the revenues. Items not practicably measurable until cash is received would be accounted for at that time."

In accompanying commentary, PSAAC noted that amounts owing from self-assessed taxes are not now estimated by the government at the end of the accounting period. However, the Committee also commented that as reliable methods are developed to estimate such amounts, they should be accounted for in the financial statements. This would help ensure that a complete measure of revenue is reported and that related financial assets are accounted for in the period created.

In May of 1987, the Senate Finance Committee heard testimony concerning whether the government's accounts receivable should be included in the Statement of Assets and Liabilities. In its Eleventh Report of May 28 of that year, the Committee stated that:

> "...it recognizes the difficulty raised by the witnesses in determining the value of a tax and non-tax receivables. Nevertheless it believes that in principle, all receivables should be accrued and be part of the audited financial statements of the Government of Canada."

The Committee recommended that my Office audit the memorandum records maintained by departments in order to determine the practicability of including accounts receivable in the government's summary statements. This is being done. In 1989, the government began reporting receivables in respect of non-tax revenue. In the current year, officials from my Office have initiated discussions with the government to determine how best to recognize receivables and payables for tax revenue.

In summary, I believe that the government should, without delay, adjust the liability to provinces for income tax collected on their behalf in order to satisfy the definition of liabilities set out in Note 1 (vi). In addition, the government should begin to recognize income tax revenue on an appropriate accrual basis as soon as it is practicable to do so. Implementation of these recommendations would remove distortions from the accounts and provide users with more of the information they need.

What My Audit Opinion Means And How I Arrived At It

The format of this year's opinion is somewhat different from that of previous years. Many of the changes implement recommendations of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants that were designed to make audit opinions more understandable. Other changes were necessary because the 1991 opinion contains Reservations and the 1990 opinion did not.

My audit opinion on the government's 1991 financial statements consists of four paragraphs. The first, commonly referred to as the "introduction" paragraph, identifies the financial statements that I have examined and reported on, and the responsibilities of the government and of my office in relation thereto. The second "scope" paragraph is new this year. It provides a summarized explanation of generally accepted auditing standards, including the key concepts of "reasonable assurance" and "material misstatement". The third "reservation" paragraph is also new this year. It summarizes the three Reservations contained in my audit opinion, and their effect on the government's financial statements. The fourth paragraph, commonly called the "opinion" paragraph, contains my conclusions about the government's financial statements.

The introduction paragraph. The introduction paragraph begins by listing the financial statements covered by my opinion. It is important to note that my audit opinion relates only to these summary financial statements and related notes contained in Section 2 of Volume I of the Public Accounts of Canada. It does not extend to the more detailed information presented in other sections of the Public Accounts Volume I, or to Volumes II and III.

The introduction paragraph concludes by confirming that the financial statements are the responsibility of the government, and that my responsibility is to express an opinion on them.

The scope paragraph. In this paragraph, I state that my audit work on the government's financial statements has been conducted according to generally accepted auditing standards prescribed by the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants. I use these standards to ensure that my audit is conducted with appropriate rigor and professionalism.

The reservation paragraph. This paragraph alerts the reader to the fact that the audit opinion contains Reservations, and summarizes their net effect on the government's financial statements. The individual Reservations follow the opinion paragraph.

The opinion paragraph. The opinion paragraph contains my conclusions about three matters. First, whether the financial statements may be relied on to present fairly the government's financial position, results of operations, changes in financial position and financial requirements. Second, whether the financial statements were prepared in accordance with the government's stated accounting policies. Third, whether the stated accounting policies were applied on the same basis as in the preceding year.

To present information fairly, the financial statements must be free of material misstatement. When determining what constitutes a misstatement, there must be standards against which my judgments can be made. The government's stated accounting policies and certain recommendations of PSAAC are the standards that I have used this year.

Some accounts, such as the allowance for general contingencies and employee pension liabilities, are inherently imprecise. When considering whether misstatements exist in these accounts, I determine a range of values for each that I believe would be reasonable. If the balance of the account as determined by the government falls within my range, I conclude that there is no misstatement.

If I conclude that, in the aggregate, the financial statements are free of material misstatement, I report that information is "presented fairly". If the statements are materially misstated, I add supporting "reservations" to explain why.

In planning my audit of the government's financial statements, I consider two main factors. The first is a dollar figure called "materiality"; the second is the nature and extent of the work required.

Materiality. As discussed above, to present information fairly the financial statements must be free of material misstatement. The concept of materiality is therefore implicit in the phrase "present fairly".

The aggregate of all misstatements is considered material if, in the light of surrounding circumstances, it is probable that the misstatements would change or influence the decision of a person who is relying on the financial statements. In saying this, I assume that the person is someone with reasonable knowledge of the government and its activities. I will include a reservation in my audit opinion if I believe that the aggregate of all misstatements in the financial statements exceeds the materiality levels established.

I planned my audit of the government's 1991 financial statements to detect misstatements that affect the deficit for the year or amounts charged to appropriations if the misstatements aggregate to more than $600 million. (While this is a large amount in absolute dollars, it represents only one-half of one percent of total expenditure, or two percent of the deficit for the year.) A figure of $1.2 billion is used for other misstatements, such as those affecting contingent liabilities and other items disclosed in notes to the financial statements.

It should be noted that my audit is designed to detect individual misstatements that are significantly smaller than the aggregate amounts shown above. As a consequence, misstatements considerably less than $600 million will be identified. Should I believe that any of these would cause readers to be misled, I would request the government to take corrective action. If the misstatement is not corrected, I would also include a reservation in my audit opinion.

The nature and extent of the work required. In conducting my audit, I cannot be 100 percent certain that it will reveal all misstatements in the financial statements that, individually or in the aggregate, may be material. The size and complexity of the government, as well as cost considerations, make it impractical for me to examine all or even most of the approximately $1.5 trillion-worth of individual transactions entered into during the year.

Generally accepted auditing standards require that I have "reasonable assurance" that my audit will reveal misstatements aggregating to more than the predetermined materiality level. I planned my audit of the government's 1991 financial statements to achieve a high level of overall audit assurance.

To obtain the desired level of assurance, I verified samples of transactions and account balances, performed analyses, confirmed year-end balances with third parties and reviewed significant internal controls. When planning the nature and extent of each of these procedures, I used an overall assurance level of approximately 97 percent.

What this amounts to is exercising professional judgment about how much auditing is required to provide the desired level of assurance to the users of the statements that they can rely on the reported results and not be misled.

Auditing for compliance with Parliamentary authorities. Detailed examinations and verifications of parliamentary authorities to spend, borrow and raise revenues are conducted during comprehensive audits of departments and agencies. The results of this work are included in the applicable chapters of my annual Report to Parliament.

These same authorities are also included in my annual audit of the government's financial statements. However, the authorities are examined and verified to the level of materiality established for auditing the government's overall financial position, results of operations, changes in financial position and financial requirements.

The Work Of PSAAC

It is difficult for those who prepare and audit government financial statements to determine when the statements present information fairly and when they do not. Although progress is being made, there does not yet exist an agreed-upon set of standards for good accounting and reporting practice to help users of government financial statements get the information they need and to help preparors and auditors assess fairness.

In March 1981, the Board of Governors of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants established the Public Sector Accounting and Auditing Committee (PSAAC). The Committee provides a forum for considering the information needs of users, preparers and auditors of government financial statements. It also develops and recommends enhanced accounting principles and disclosure standards for consideration by Canadian governments and their auditors.

The existence of PSAAC does not alter the responsibility of auditors to exercise independent professional judgment when they examine and report on government financial statements. As pointed out by the Committee in the Introduction to its Accounting and Auditing Recommendations, "no rule of general application can be phrased to suit all circumstances or combination of circumstances that may arise, nor is there any substitute for the exercise of professional judgment in the determination of what constitutes fair presentation or good practice in a particular case".

Nonetheless, PSAAC can help auditors to better discharge this responsibility by developing a consensus of appropriate financial reporting practices, to which both governments and auditors can refer when assessing fairness. I support PSAAC and recommend that the government and Members of Parliament support its pronouncements.

As at March 31, 1991, PSAAC had issued six statements on accounting that apply to the federal and provincial governments. In addition, PSAAC has published a research study on the recording and reporting of physical assets.

As explained in Reservations 1 and 2, the financial statements of the government of Canada do not yet comply fully with PSAAC recommendations on employee pensions and the reporting entity.

In addition, the government's financial statements do not comply with PSAAC recommendations requiring:

- disclosure of the government's acquired physical assets on hand and available for use at the end of the year; and,
- a comparison of actual results with those originally forecast by the fiscal plan.

I have not included a reservation in my audit opinion on the government's financial statements because of the failure to implement these two recommendations. PSAAC does not specify an implementation date and I recognize that the government needs time and new systems to develop appropriate disclosure. However, I believe these recommendations are appropriate, and I would expect the government to implement them at the earliest possible date.

The Need For A Concise Annual Financial Report

At present, the government's financial statements are presented in the Public Accounts of Canada, a three-volume set of documents of massive proportions. Users advise that they find this presentation cumbersome and difficult to work with. They want a simpler, more focussed approach to presenting the government's overall numbers. And they want some context for the numbers in plain, non-technical language.

In my view, a comprehensive but concise annual financial report by the federal government would be extremely valuable. It would provide a broad picture and a more complete understanding of the government's activities and resulting financial position and it would serve as a key to the more detailed information the government provides in other financial documents.

In its Eighth Report of 30 June 1987, the Public Accounts Committee endorsed "the need for a succinct annual financial report for parliamentarians and other users of government financial information".

I encourage the government to give serious consideration to presenting its financial statements in such a report.

BUDGETARY REVENUE

Budgetary revenue consists of all tax and non-tax amounts which affect the annual surplus or deficit of the Government of Canada. Revenue is reported net of refunds and excludes amounts credited to the Canada Pension Plan Account, superannuation accounts, taxes collected on behalf of the provinces and territories, other specified purpose accounts and other liability accounts.

The Government generally reports tax revenue in the year in which it is received and excludes taxes receivable. Refunds are allocated to the year in which the processing cycle for the assessment of the related tax returns has been started.

Tax revenue for a fiscal year includes receipts credited to the Receiver General for Canada by the Bank of Canada and the chartered banks by March 31st and amounts received by federal government offices by March 31st, but not deposited until April or not credited to the Receiver General until April. Tax revenue also includes amounts received in the mail on the first working day of April, except when it is clear that it was the remitter's intention to discharge an obligation arising in the new fiscal year.

The main factors affecting the flow of tax revenue are variations in economic conditions, changes in statutory tax rates, and changes in the base upon which the statutory tax rates are applied and taxes calculated. Although a taxpayer's income tax liability relates to a taxation year, collection of individual and corporation income taxes by payroll deductions and instalment payments results in a distribution of receipts throughout the year. Similarly, sales and excise taxes and duties are received on a regular basis throughout the year.

Non-tax revenue is reported on an accrual basis and reported in the year in which the transaction occurred that gave rise to the revenue.

Revenue, both tax and non-tax, is reported on both a gross and net basis. The difference between gross and net revenue is revenue credited to appropriations and revenue of consolidated Crown corporations. Revenue credited to appropriations consists of two parts — revenue from outside parties and revenue internal to the Government which is generated from transactions between departments within the Government.

Revenue from Outside Parties by Main Classification

Chart A presents net revenue from outside parties by main classification for the current fiscal year while Chart B compares the net revenue from outside parties for the last five fiscal years.

CHART B
TOTAL NET REVENUE FROM OUTSIDE PARTIES

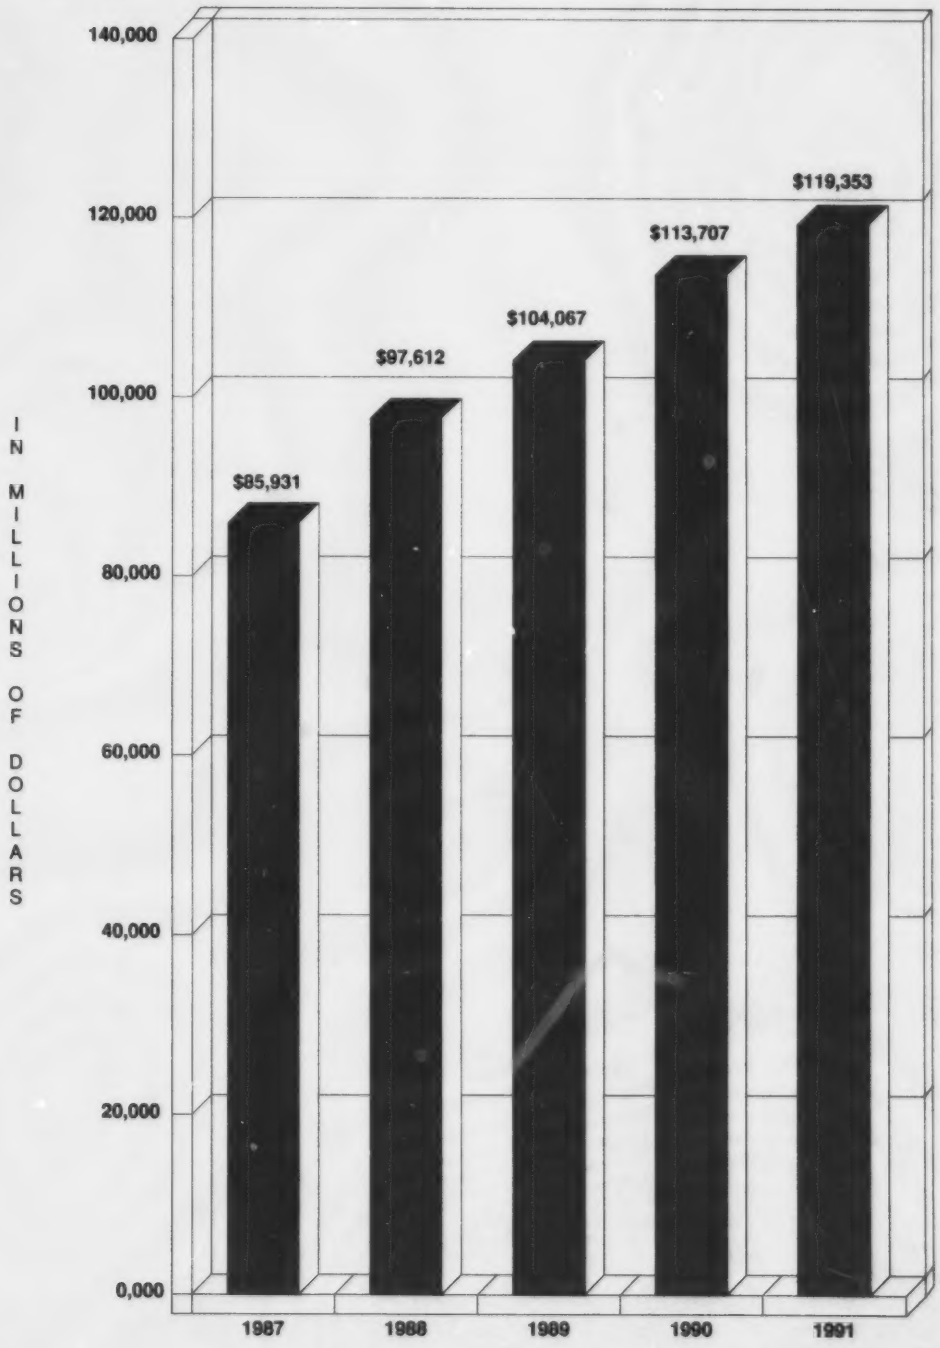

Table 3.1 presents revenue from outside parties by main classification on both a gross and net basis. "Gross revenue" reports all revenue received from outside parties including:

— revenue credited to appropriations where, as authorized by Parliament, certain revenues which are associated with the recovery of certain costs are credited to program spending. In such cases, Parliament votes such funds net of authorized revenue; and, — revenue of consolidated Crown corporations where, for reporting in the annual financial statements, the financial transactions of certain dependent Crown corporations are included with those of the Government.

"Net revenue" excludes the above two categories. Net revenue represents all budgetary revenue recorded in the accounts of Canada in accordance with the accounting policies of the Government.

On a day-to-day basis, organizations within the Government transact with each other and, thus, contribute to gross amounts of revenue and expenditure. In preparing the financial statements, these "internal transactions" are eliminated so as to report on the basis of transactions with outside parties only. Table 3.2 provides details of internal revenue transactions and shows the total of revenues from both internal and external sources. The total gross revenue of $127,265 million includes the total revenue from all sources. Revenue of consolidated Crown corporations and revenue credited to appropriations are deducted to arrive at net revenue from all sources. This total of $119,524 million is made up of total ministerial revenue ($106,533 million) and revenue of consolidated specified purpose accounts ($12,991 million) as detailed in Volume II, Part I, Table 4a.

Budgetary Revenue in 1990-91

Total net budgetary revenue in 1990-91 amounted to $119,353 million. This represents an increase of 5.0%, or $5,646 million from the level reported for 1989-90. Tax revenue, which accounts for 92% of total revenue, increased by $4,432 million or 4.2%, while non-tax revenue increased by $1,214 million or 14.6%.

Tax Revenue

Most of the growth in tax revenue in 1990-91 was concentrated in personal income tax collections and unemployment insurance contributions. However, significantly dampening the impact of the increases in these components on total tax revenue was lower revenues from excise taxes and duties and from corporate income taxes. The transitional costs associated with the replacement of the manufacturer's sales tax with the Goods and Services Tax, effective January 1, 1991, as well as the impact of the Canada-United States Free Trade Agreement, resulted in lower excise taxes and duties, while the recession impacted negatively on corporate income tax revenues.

Personal Income Tax

The personal income tax is levied on personal income under the provisions of the Income Tax Act. Personal income tax is the largest source of federal Government revenue, accounting for nearly 48% of total budgetary revenue in 1990-91.

Personal income tax revenue in 1990-91 amounted to $57,601 million, an increase of 11.0% or $5,706 million from 1989-90. This increase was largely due to the continued strength in personal income, which increased by 7.5% in 1990, and the progressivity of the personal income tax system. The growth in personal income, in turn, reflects strength in employment and advances in wages and salaries. Certain tax initiatives annouced in the April 1989 budget to reduce the deficit also served to increase personal income tax revenues. These included the repayment of social transfers by higher-income Canadians and the increases in the high-income and general surtaxes. Effective for the 1989 taxation year, higher-income Canadians are required to repay old age security and family allowance benefits at a rate of 15% of individual net income exceeding $50,000. As this measure is being phased in over three years, the repayments applicable to taxation year 1989 were one-third of the amount payable. As repayments are made at the time of tax filing, this measure first affected personal income tax revenue in fiscal year 1990-91. The April 1989 budget also increased the general income surtax by 2 percentage points to 5% and introduced an additional surtax on high-income individuals of 3%. As these measures were effective July 1, 1989, the full year fiscal impact was not felt until 1990-91. Finally, personal income tax refunds in 1990-91 were $0.7 billion lower than in 1989-90. This was largely due to the transitional impact of personal income tax reform. Although most of the personal income tax reform measures became effective January 1, 1988, withholding tables were not adjusted until July 1, 1989, with the result that personal income tax refunds were substantially higher in 1989-90, thereby dampening personal income revenues in that year.

Corporation Income Tax

The corporation income tax is levied on corporation income under the provisions of the Income Tax Act. Corporation income tax revenue amounted to $11,726 million in 1990-91, a decline of 9.9% from 1989-90. This decline reflected the impact of the recession on corporate profits. Rising unit labour costs and weakening demand have left corporate profit margins at their lowest levels since the 1981-82 recession. Corporate profits have declined steadily since the fourth quarter of 1988 and by the end of 1990 were nearly 50% below their pre-recession peak. The decline in corporate income tax revenue has been proportionally less than the cumulative decline in corporate profits, owing in part to the impact of the base-broadening measures introduced as part of the 1988 Income Tax Reform as well as the introduction in the April 1989 budget of the Large Corporations Tax.

Unemployment Insurance Contributions

Premiums from employees and employers are levied under the provisions of the Unemployment Insurance Act and are classified as part of budgetary revenue. In 1990-91, unemployment insurance contributions increased by 18.3%, to $12,707 million. This increase primarily reflects the impact of the changes in the financing provisions of the unemployment insurance program, as announced in the April 1989 budget. Effective January 1, 1990, the full cost of the program is financed through employee-employer premiums. Previously, the federal government financed certain components of the program. As a result, premium rates were increased January 1, 1990 (the employee premium rate was increased to $2.25 per $100 of insurable earnings for calendar year 1990).

Non-Resident Income Tax

Non-resident income tax is levied on income earned in Canada by non-residents under the provisions of the Income Tax Act. This tax is derived from tax withheld from dividends, interest, rents, royalties, alimony, and income from estates and trusts paid to non-residents. Non-resident income tax amounted to $1,372 million, virtually unchanged from the level recorded in the previous fiscal year.

Excise Taxes and Duties

Excise taxes and duties are collected under the Excise Tax Act and Customs Tariff Act. Excise taxes and duties include the federal manufacturers' sales tax, the Goods and Services Tax which replaced the manufacturers' sales tax on January 1, 1991, customs import duties, energy taxes, and other excise taxes and duties. Excise taxes and duties totalled $26,143 million, a decline of 7.1% or $2,012 million. The decline primarily reflects the transitional costs associated with sales tax reform and the phase-out of tariffs under the Canada-United States Free Trade Agreement.

Goods and services tax

The Goods and Services Tax became effective January 1, 1991. Net revenue of $2,574 million was collected in 1990-91. Goods and Services Tax revenue in 1990-91 was dampened by the impact of certain one-time transitional costs associated with sales tax reform. These transitional costs include the prepayment of the Goods and Services Tax Credit to lower and modest income Canadians in December 1990 and the transitional grant to small business.

Sales tax

On January 1, 1991, the federal manufacturers' sales tax was replaced by the Goods and Services Tax. In addition, sales tax paid on new and unused goods in inventory as of December 31, 1990 is to be rebated. The elimination of the federal manufacturers' sales tax, coupled with the repayment of sales tax paid on new and unused goods in inventory, accounts for the 22.9% decline in sales tax revenue in 1990-91.

Customs import duties

Revenue from customs import duties consist mainly of ad valorem taxes on the importation of goods levied under the Customs Tariff Act. In 1990-91, revenues amounted to $4,001 million, a decline of 12.8% from 1989-90. The decline in revenue largely reflects the phase-out, starting January 1, 1989, of all bilateral tariffs under the Canada-United States Free Trade Agreement, coupled with remittance changes associated with sales tax reform.

Energy taxes

Energy taxes primarily include the excise tax on gasoline, aviation gas and diesel fuel. Energy tax revenue totalled $2,472 million in 1990-91, practically unchanged from the level recorded in 1989-90. The flow of revenue during 1990-91 was affected by the 1-cent-per-litre increase in the excise tax on gasoline and aviation fuel effective January 1, 1990. However, the impact on this increase on energy tax revenue was offset by a decline in consumption.

Other excise taxes and duties

Excise duties are levied on alcoholic beverages (other than wines) and tobacco products. In addition, excise taxes are also imposed on other items such as jewellery, passenger vehicle air conditioners, and telecommunications programming services. Other excise taxes and duties revenue amounted to $3,466 million, up 1.2% from 1989-90.

Other Tax Revenue

Other tax revenue is comprised primarily of withholding taxes on income earned in Canada by non-resident life insurance companies and income from trusts. In 1990-91, other tax revenue amounted to $279 million, up 23.5% from 1989-90.

Non-Tax Revenue

Non-tax revenue consists of return on investments and other non-tax revenue. In 1990-91, such revenues amounted to $9,525 million, an increase of 14.6% from 1989-90.

Return on Investments

Return on investments consists mainly of interest from loans and advances, transfer of profits and surpluses, and rental income from properties. Return on investments amounted to $6,807 million, an increase of 16.4% over last year's result. The various components of return on investments are presented in Table 3.3, on both a gross and net basis. Most of the increase in 1990-91 was due to higher profits for the Bank of Canada and the Exchange Fund Account, reflecting the increase in interest rates during 1990-91 and actions by the Bank of Canada to help maintain orderly conditions in the Canadian dollar exchange market.

Other Non-Tax Revenue

Other non-tax revenue is comprised of refunds of previous years' expenditure, service fees, privileges, licences and permits, proceeds from the sale of capital assets and current goods and services, domestic coinage, and miscellaneous non-tax revenue. Details are reported by individual ministry in Volume II(Part I) of the Public Accounts. Other non-tax revenue increased by 10.4% to $2,718 million in 1990-91.

Proceeds from sales ($126 million) include the sale of goods and Crown assets including products produced by the Government, such as publications and maps, agricultural and manufactured products, net proceeds from the sale of Crown corporations, and other related items.

Refunds of previous years' expenditure ($404 million) largely relates to recoveries of items paid out of or charged to prior years' appropriations, such as refunds and repayments of contributions.

Privileges, licences and permits ($384 million) include the proceeds from the sale of regulated privileges such as licences, registrations and permits for hunting, fishing, timber, business ventures, rentals of public buildings, leasing and royalties, citizenship registration, and other related charges.

Services and service fees ($249 million) include charges for certain services provided by the Government such as application, filing, and registration fees, recoveries of hospital and medical costs from provincial hospital plans and other sources, along with other related items.

Domestic coinage ($111 million) relates to the gross proceeds from the sale of domestic coinage through the Department of Finance. Costs are reported as expenditure of the Department.

Miscellaneous non-tax revenue ($1,444 million) includes a diverse number of items including revenues arising from contributions of programs or recoveries of costs from provinces; seizures, forfeitures, fines and penalties under various statutes and programs; contributions to retirement plans by judges and senators; principal and interest repayments on Canada student loans; and write-off of cheques which were not claimed, among others.

BUDGETARY EXPENDITURE

Budgetary expenditure consists of all charges to budgetary appropriations which affect the annual deficit or surplus of the Government. Such charges include transfer payments made to individuals, other levels of government and businesses, the costs of goods and services received and the costs of capital acquired during the course of the year and in the supplementary period including accounts payable at year end. In addition, budgetary expenditure also includes provisions for the valuation of loans, investments and advances, for borrowings of enterprise Crown corporations, which are agents of the Crown, and for other obligations related to statutory items and annual appropriations. As well, expenditures of certain specified purpose accounts, such as the Unemployment Insurance Account, the Western Grain Stabilization Account, the Crop Re-insurance Fund, the Agricultural Commodities Stabilization Accounts, are also included. Budgetary expenditure excludes amounts charged to the Canada Pension Plan Account, superannuation accounts, and other specified purpose and liability accounts.

Expenditure with Outside Parties by Type

Chart A presents the total net expenditure with outside parties by type for the current fiscal year, while Chart B compares the total net expenditure with outside parties for the last five fiscal years.

Table 4.1 presents expenditure with outside parties by type. The table is presented on both a gross and a net basis. The difference between gross and net expenditure is revenue credited to appropriations and revenue of consolidated Crown corporations credited to expenditure.

In this table, expenditure with outside parties represents expenditure incurred as a result of transactions with organizations and individuals outside the Government of Canada as a reporting entity. The Government of Canada as a reporting entity is defined in Note 1 to the audited financial statements in Section 2 of this volume.

Revenue credited to appropriations represents revenue that has been credited to budgetary expenditure, rather than budgetary revenue, where such authority has been granted by Parliament, and revenue of consolidated Crown corporations credited to expenditure.

Total net expenditure represents all budgetary expenditure recorded in the accounts of Canada in accordance with the accounting policies of the Government. Total gross expenditure is derived by adding to total net expenditure the revenue credited to appropriations and the revenue of consolidated Crown corporations credited to expenditure.

On a day-to-day basis, organizations within the Government entity transact with each other and thus contribute to the amounts of revenue and expenditure recorded in the accounts. In preparing the financial statements, these "internal transactions" are eliminated so as to report on the basis of transactions with outside parties only. Table 4.2 provides details of internal expenditure transactions and shows the total of expenditures transacted by the Government with all sources.

Budgetary Expenditure in 1990-91

Total net budgetary expenditure with outside parties in 1990-91 amounted to $149,971 million. This represents an increase of 5.1% from the level of $142,703 million reported in 1989-90. Most of the increase in total net expenditure of $7,268 million, between 1989-90 and 1990-91, was concentrated in two major components--- transfers to persons up $4,070 million and public debt charges up $3,717 million. In contrast, declines were recorded in transfers to other levels of government and in other transfer payments.

Public debt charges, which account for 28% of total net expenditure, increased by 9.6%, to $42,537 million in 1990-91. This is the first year since 1987-88 that the annual growth in public debt charges has been less than 10%. The increase in public debt charges reflects the compounding effect of interest rates on the increasing stock of debt. Although interest rates peaked in May 1990 and have recorded significant declines since then, the average interest rate on outstanding government debt continued to increase in 1990-91 and, this coupled with an increase in the stock of debt, resulted in higher public debt charges.

Total program spending---that is, Government spending excluding public debt charges--- advanced 3.4%. This is identical to the growth in gross domestic product, but well below the inflation rate of 4.8%. The increase in program spending primarily reflects the impact of the recession on the cyclically-sensitive components of program spending, especially unemployment insurance benefits and Canada Assistance Plan transfers. Significantly dampening the impact of these factors on program spending was the effect of the various restraint measures that the Government has introduced since November 1984. These measures include the phasing-out and reduction of various expenditure programs, limits on indexation, and reductions in the number of person-years, along with other measures to control operating costs. Fiscal year 1990-91 was the first year of the Expenditure Control Plan. This Plan is a comprehensive two-year approach to expenditure control, which effectively controls about 60% of all government spending on programs. The major programs exempt from the Plan include federal transfers to persons (elderly benefits, veterans' pensions and allowances, and unemployment insurance benefits) and certain major federal transfers to provinces (Equalization and Canada Assistance Plan transfers to equalization-receiving provinces).

The largest component of program spending---transfers to persons---advanced by 12.7% in 1990-91, primarily attributable to the surge in unemployment insurance benefits as a result of the recession. Unemployment insurance benefits were up 25.4%, with about two-thirds of the increase attributable to advances in the number of beneficiaries, primarily in Ontario, and the remainder due to increases in the average weekly benefit rate. Among the other programs within major transfers to persons, elderly benefit payments were up 6.0%, reflecting increases in both average benefits, which are indexed to quarterly changes in the consumer price index, and the eligible population base.

Direct cash transfers to other levels of government declined between 1989-90 and 1990-91 as increases in Canada Assistance Plan transfers were offset by lower direct cash transfers under both the Established Programs Financing (EPF) and equalization programs. Under the Canada Assistance Plan, the federal government provides funds to provinces and territories to help them pay for certain social assistance benefits and services. Prior-year adjustments, especially to Ontario, as well as increased caseloads due to the economic environment, have resulted in these transfers increasing by 15.6% in 1990-91. Although the February 1990 budget capped the growth in these transfers to Ontario, Alberta, and British Columbia at 5% in 1990-91, the cap was not enforced pending the Supreme Court ruling on the provincial challenge to this measure. Cash transfers under Established Programs Financing (EPF) declined, due to the Expenditure Control Plan announced in the February 1990 budget, which held per capita EPF transfers constant at the 1989-90 levels. As a result, total EPF entitlements increased by only 1.1% in 1990-91. EPF entitlements are paid in the form of tax point transfers and cash and, as the value of tax transfers is unaffected by this measure, this restraint initiative impacts only on cash transfers and accounts for the 10.6% decline in cash transfers. Fiscal arrangements, consisting primarily of equalization transfers to lower-income provinces, also declined in 1990-91. However, the decline resulted from the inclusion of large one-time payments in 1989-90 relating to underpayments in previous years, as overall entitlements under this program were up 4.6% in 1990-91.

Other transfers include foreign aid, assistance in the stabilization of market prices for commodities, the development of new technologies, research, the establishment of new jobs through training, and the promotion of educational and cultural activities. Other transfer payments declined by 4.4% due to declines in grants and contributions for regional and industrial development and agriculture. The decline in regional and industrial development transfers reflectes a lower take-up due to the recession, while the decline in agricultural transfers was primarily due to the timing of payments as well as the impact of new cost-sharing programs with the provinces. In contrast, increases were recorded in grants and contributions to Indian and Inuit peoples, assistance to developing countries, and to job creation and training programs.

Crown corporation expenditures were up 10.1% in 1990-91, reflecting increased transfers to the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation and higher liabilities with respect to losses incurred by enterprise corporations. Transfers to VIA Rail and Canada Post Corporation were lower, reflecting the impact of past restraint measures.

Other program expenditures include defence spending on operations and capital, as well as government administration and specific services delivered to the public, such as:

—health care to natives and veterans;

—research undertaken by government employees;

—the operation of airports and national parks;

—the operation of federal correctional institutions; and,

—the provision of police services.

Other program expenditures increased by 1.2% in 1990-91. Within this component, defence expenditures increased by 6.3% while all other departmental operating and capital spending declined by 7.1%. The increase in defence spending reflects the formula-funded nature of this program and the incremental funding provided to cover costs associated with activities related to the hostilities in the Gulf. Spending on other government operations remained restrained in 1990-91 due to the ongoing restraint measures introduced in past budgets and specific reduction initiatives undertaken in 1990-91 to fund the incremental costs associated with the Gulf hostilities. In addition, adjustments to the allowance for the actuarial liability for employee pensions, due to both the revisions in economic assumptions and the wage strategy announced in the February 1991 budget, also impacted on the growth in this component. Dampening the impact of these factors on other program expenditures were increased funding for National Revenue to implement the Goods and Services Tax, along with higher unemployment insurance administrative costs due to the increase in the number of beneficiaries.

SUPPLEMENTARY STATEMENTS

Public Debt Charges

Public debt charges include interest on unmatured debt (including Canada Savings Bonds, marketable bonds, and Treasury bills), on specified purpose accounts and other accounts, costs of issuing new loans, amortization of bond discounts, premiums and commissions, and the costs of servicing the public debt.

Of the increase of $3,717 million in public debt charges in 1990-91, nearly three-quarters is commensurate with an increase in unmatured debt, which rose from $294,562 million at March 31, 1990 to $323,903 million at March 31, 1991. Most of the remaining increase in public debt charges relates to increased interest costs on specified purpose accounts, most notably on the superannuation accounts.

A comparative summary of public debt charges is presented in Table 4.3. The table also discloses the reconciling item between total public debt charges as reported in the Finance ministerial section (Section 10) of Volume II (Part I) and the total net expenditure of the public debt as per Table 4.1. The reconciling item includes the expenditure of the consolidated specified purpose accounts.

Expenditure under Statutory Authority

The spending authority provided by statutory authority is for specified purposes and for such amounts and such time as the acts prescribe. This spending authority does not generally lapse at the end of the year in which it is granted. Expenditure under such authority accounts for more than two-thirds of the total net expenditure each year.

Table 4.4 presents a comparative summary of these statutory expenditures. The table also discloses the reconciling items between total ministerial expenditure under statutory authority and total net statutory expenditure. The reconciling items include the statutory expenditure of the consolidated specified purpose accounts and the provision for valuation. Revenue credited to appropriations from outside parties has been added to the total net statutory expenditure with outside parties to obtain the total gross statutory expenditure with outside parties.

Five programs account for over eighty-five per cent of the total spending under total gross statutory expenditures with outside parties. These are:

—public debt charges;

—unemployment insurance benefits;

—pension payments to the elderly, including old age security payments, guaranteed income supplement payments, and spouse's allowance payments;

—federal-provincial fiscal arrangements and public utilities; and,

—Established Programs Financing transfers, including payments for hospital insurance, medical care and extended health care services and post-secondary education payments to provinces and territories.

CONSOLIDATED CROWN CORPORATIONS

This section provides all related information on consolidated Crown corporations.

Consolidated Crown corporations are those Crown corporations who rely on Government funding as their principal source of revenue. Crown corporations are defined to include either parent Crown corporations or wholly-owned subsidiaries. A wholly-owned subsidiary is wholly-owned by one or more parent Crown corporations.

Consolidation involves the combination of the accounts of the corporations described in the preceding paragraph on a line-by-line and uniform basis of accounting and eliminating inter-organizational balances and transactions. Before these balances and transactions can be eliminated, the corporations' accounts must be adjusted to the Government basis of accounting. Most corporations follow generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP) used by private sector companies. The most significant difference between GAAP and the Government basis of accounting is that under GAAP, non-financial assets such as buildings, machinery, equipment and inventories are reflected as assets and written-off over their respective lives or as they are consumed or used. The Government treats the acquisition of non-financial assets as expenditures in the year of acquisition.

Summary Financial Statements of Consolidated Crown Corporations

The following tables display details of the assets, liabilities, revenues and expenses of the consolidated Crown corporations.

For those corporations having other year ends than March 31, the data are based on unaudited interim financial statements which have been prepared on a basis consistent with the most recent audited financial statements.

Tables 5.1 and 5.2 summarize the financial transactions and results of operations of each consolidated Crown corporation in accordance with its own respective accounting policies. Most consolidated Crown corporations follow the generally accepted accounting principles used by private sector companies, as outlined in the Handbook of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants.

Financial assets include cash, receivables, loans and investments. Physical assets and deferred charges represent the unexpended portion of non-financial assets such as buildings, machinery and equipment in use or under construction, inventories and other items of expenditure which will be expended as these assets are used. Financial assets and liabilities in respect of the Government and other Crown corporations represent the unpaid balances arising from financing transactions and normal operating activities. Borrowings from outside parties represent amounts repayable to institutional and other investors. Other liabilities are amounts due in respect of purchases, employee termination and pension benefits, accrued interest on borrowings, long-term capital leases and sundry accounts payable.

Revenues include financial assistance received or receivable from the Government in respect of the current year's operations. Expenses are segregated between those relating to outside parties, Government and other Crown corporations as well as other adjustments and dividends paid to outside parties. These adjustments may increase or reduce the amount of income accruing to the Government. Equity transactions with the Government include dividends declared, transfers of profits to the Government and non-current financial assistance provided by the Government. The line "Conversion to the Government accounting basis for consolidation purposes" represents the adjustments required to bring the corporations' generally accepted accounting principles basis of accounting to the Government's basis of accounting.

These tables present consolidated financial information on consolidated parent Crown corporations and financial information on unconsolidated wholly-owned subsidiaries. Volume III of the Public Accounts includes a complete list of all parent Crown corporations, wholly-owned subsidiaries, other subsidiaries and associates.

Consolidated Crown corporations are also categorized as being either agents or non-agents of the Crown. Agency status may be expressly stated in the incorporating legislation or conferred under the provisions of the Government Corporations Operation Act. In accordance with Section 54 of the Financial Administration Act, the payment of all money borrowed by consolidated agent Crown corporations and interest thereon is a charge on and payable out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund. Table 5.3 summarizes such borrowings for the consolidated corporations and the changes during the year ended March 31, 1991.

A summary of financial assistance under Government budgetary appropriations to consolidated Crown corporations for the year ended March 31, 1991 is provided in Table 5.5. Differences in figures reported in Table 5.2 and those reported in Table 5.5 result from the use of different accounting policies and from items in transit.

Notes to Table 5.1 are an integral part of this table.

[1] This column records only that portion of financial assistance received or receivable from the federal Government that has been credited to operations. A further amount of $139,472 representing capital and operating appropriations received by the corporations is included in "Equity transactions with Government". Revenues "Other" include amounts generated from the sale of goods and services, investment income as well as grants where the corporations qualify as a member of a general class of recipients. The total financial assistance accounted for by the corporations during the year does not agree with the amount reported in Table 5.5 because of differences resulting from the different accounting policies followed.

CONSOLIDATED SPECIFIED PURPOSE ACCOUNTS

Consolidated specified purpose accounts are categories of budgetary revenue and expenditure which report transactions of certain accounts where enabling legislation requires that revenues be earmarked, and that related payments and expenditures be charged against such revenues.

In the past, earmarked revenues were credited to non-budgetary accounts, with related offsetting payments and expenditures charged thereto. The transactions of these accounts are reported with budgetary revenue and expenditure, in order to provide a more comprehensive reporting of the Government's operating results.

Since 1989-90, transactions in some insurance and other specified purposes accounts are reported as budgetary revenue and expenditure. This was done as a result of changes in accounting policies affecting specified purpose accounts and has been applied on a retroactive basis.

Further, enabling legislation requires that the transactions in each of these accounts be accounted for separately. Table 5.6 presents a summary of the balances and transactions of these accounts, in the manner required by legislation.

The financial statements of the Unemployment Insurance Account, together with the Auditor General's report thereon, are presented at the end of this section.

The Act provides that the following be credited to the Account: (a) premiums, fines, penalties and interest; (b) up until October 23, 1990, Government share of benefits paid; (c) refunds of overpayments of benefits and, since November 18, 1990, of special assistance payments, and benefit repayments; (d) amounts for services rendered to other Government departments or agencies, or to the public; (e) amounts provided for any other purpose related to unemployment insurance and authorized by an appropriation administered by the Canada Employment and Immigration Commission; and, (f) interest on the balance of the Account at such rates as the Minister of Finance may authorize. The Act also provides that the following be charged to the Account: (a) benefits and, since November 18, 1990, special assistance payments paid under the Act; (b) costs of administering the Act; and (c) interest on advances made by the Minister of Finance.

Maximum weekly employee premiums were $14.40 from April 1, 1990 to December 31, 1990 and $15.30 from January 1, 1991 to March 31, 1991. For the same periods, maximum weekly benefits were $384 from April 1, 1990 to December 31, 1990 and $408 from January 1, 1991 to March 31, 1991.

Canadian Ownership Account

This account was established under the authority of Energy, Mines and Resources Vote 5c, Appropriation Act No 4, 1980-81. The account was credited with amounts received from the Canadian Ownership special charge levied to increase public ownership of the oil and gas industry in Canada.

Western Grain Stabilization Account

The purpose of the Western Grain Stabilization Act is to protect prairie grain producers from unexpected and large income declines, through the stabilization of returns on the production and sale of wheat, oats, barley, rye, domestic mustard seed, canola, flax seed, triticale, mixed grain, sunflower seed, safflower seed, buckwheat, peas, lentils, fababeans and canary seed as well as any other prescribed seed that is produced in the designated area and is a grain for which a grade has been established and designated as "Canada Western" by regulation under the Canada Grain Act.

This account records funds for this purpose which are received from:

(a) levies paid by participating producers—a levy rate ranging from 2% to 4% applied to a participant's grain sales proceeds not exceeding $60,000 per year;

(b) Government contributions equal to levies paid by producers plus an additional 2% of the participating eligible grain sales proceeds of all participants on which levy has been paid by participants;

(c) interest on the amount standing to the credit of the Account at rates and in accordance with terms and conditions determined by the Minister of Finance; and,

(d) pursuant to Section 45 of the Western Grain Stabilization Act advances can be made from the Consolidated Revenue Fund when the balance in the Account is not sufficient for the payment of stabilization payments and other amounts required to be charged to the Account pursuant to Section 44 of the Western Grain Stabilization Act.

SUPPLEMENTARY STATEMENT

Canada Employment and Immigration Commission relating to the Unemployment Insurance Account

AUDITOR'S REPORT

TO THE MINISTER OF EMPLOYMENT AND IMMIGRATION

I have audited the balance sheet of the Employment and Immigration Commission relating to the Unemployment Insurance Account as at December 31, 1990 and the statement of operations and surplus for the year then ended. These financial statements are the responsibility of the Commission's management. My responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on my audit.

I conducted my audit in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that I plan and perform an audit to obtain reasonable assurance whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation.

In my opinion, these financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the Commission relating to the Unemployment Insurance Account as at December 31, 1990 and the results of its operations for the year then ended in accordance with the accounting policies set out in Note 2 to the financial statements.

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
DECEMBER 31, 1990

1. Authority and objectives

The Canada Employment and Immigration Commission, a departmental corporation named in Schedule II to the Financial Administration Act, administers the Unemployment Insurance Act. The objective of the Act is to provide short-term financial relief and other assistance to eligible workers. The financial transactions relating to this objective are reported through the Unemployment Insurance Account.

In the accounts of Canada, the Unemployment Insurance Account was established by Section 112 of the Act. All amounts received under this Act are deposited in the Consolidated Revenue Fund and credited to this Account. Benefits and the cost of administration of the Act are paid out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund and charged to this Account.

Under Part III of the Act, the Minister of National Revenue is responsible for collecting premiums from employers and employees.

The Minister of National Revenue is also responsible, under Part VII of the Act, to administer and enforce the provisions of the Act relating to benefit repayments.

2. Accounting policies

(a) Premiums

The premiums are recorded based on an estimate of the amount to be collected in the current year and include adjustments between actual and estimated premiums of prior years.

(b) Interest

Interest on the balance of the account with the Receiver General for Canada are recorded on an accrual basis.

(c) Penalties

Penalties, levied pursuant to Section 33 of the Act, are recorded on an accrual basis.

(d) Benefits

Benefits represent the warrants issued during the year less benefit overpayments established by the Commission during the year and benefit repayments estimated to be receivable under Section 123 of the Act, including adjustments between actual and estimated repayments of prior years.

(e) Administration

The costs of administration of the Act are determined by the Unemployment Insurance Regulations and are charged to the Account by the Commission.

(f) Government's share of benefits

The government's share of benefits is recorded on an accrual basis.

3. Due from claimants

4. Due from (to) Canada

	1990	1989
	(in thousands of dollars)
Premiums	96,596	81,746
Interest on balance of the account with Receiver General for Canada	25,240	12,620

Administration expenses	–54,655	–48,135
Other	–500	–450
	–34,141	43,334

5. Premiums

In 1990, the premium rate for employees was $2.25 per $100 of insurable earnings, compared to $1.95 in 1989. The premium rate for the employers, calculated at 1.4 times the employee rate, was $3.15 per $100 on an employee's insurable earnings ($2.73 per $100 in 1989).

Employers with qualified wage loss insurance plans are entitled to premium reductions. Employers are required to share this reduction with their employees. In 1990, the total amount of premium reductions is estimated at $481 million ($441 million in 1989).

6. Benefits—Overpayments and underpayments

The large number of claimants to be monitored and the requirement for prompt service require selective rather than universal internal control procedures and therefore the verification of claims is mainly done after claimants have begun to receive benefits. As a result, undetected overpayments and underpayments of benefits exist which the Commission estimated at $367 million ($348 million in 1989) and $158 million ($103 million in 1989) respectively. These amounts are included in the benefits for the year.

7. Administration costs

The administration costs totalled $1,223 million in 1990 ($1,061 million in 1989). This amount was offset by approximately $8.5 million ($7.5 million in 1989) for the recovery of costs related to maintaining the Social Insurance Number registry and issuing replacement cards. The following table provides the administration costs by activity.

Less: recovery of costs for maintaining the Social Insurance Number registry and issuing replacement cards	8,534	7,464
	1,214,722	1,053,699

Administration cost—Related party transactions

The administration costs include $89.2 million ($77.6 million in 1989) paid to Public Works for accommodation and rental costs, and $43.1 million ($39.6 million in 1989) to National Revenue for collecting premiums from employers and employees.

8. Contingent liabilities

In the normal course of the operations of the Account, certain appeals against or by the Commission are presently outstanding. In the opinion of management, the result of these appeals will not have a significant impact on the operations of the Account.

9. Significant events

(a) Passage of Bill C-21

Bill C-21, a series of amendments to the Unemployment Insurance Act, received Royal Assent on October 23, 1990. This legislation restructured the Program to provide more training and increased incentives to seek suitable employment. In addition, the full cost of the unemployment insurance program is now financed by employee and employer contributions.

(b) Age 65 retroactive payments

Bill C-21 removed the age 65 limitation on receiving benefits retroactively to September 23, 1988. As these claims had not been treated as at December 31, 1990, the retroactive amount which may be payable due to the passage of Bill C-21 is not included in the benefit expenses of these financial statements. Also, the retroactive amount was unknown at the time of preparing these statements.

Extended benefits paid under Section 22 of the Act are benefits paid to claimants who have exhausted their initial benefits (and labour force extended benefits, if they are entitled) and who reside in a region where the regional unemployment rate exceeds four per cent.

Extended benefits paid under Subsections 25(8) and 26(3) of the Act are benefits paid to claimants on job creation projects or training courses and whose entitlements are not enough to cover the duration of the project or course plus an additional maximum of three weeks of entitlement after the projects or courses end.

Section 118 and Subsection 130(3) of the Unemployment Insurance Act were repealed by Bill C-21. The 1990 government share of benefits is calculated and applicable for the period of January 1 to October 23, 1990.

LOANS, INVESTMENTS AND ADVANCES

Loans, investments and advances is a category of financial claims represented by debt instruments and ownership interests held by the Government of Canada, acquired through the use of parliamentary appropriations. Some of these appropriations permit repayments to be used for further loans and advances. Many appropriations are non-lapsing, that is, unexpended balances may be carried forward from year to year. Details of the use of non-budgetary appropriations, for loans, investments and advances, can be found in the ministerial sections of Volume II (Part I).

Loans, investments and advances are recorded at cost and are subject to valuation to reflect estimated losses on realization. Foreign currency transactions are translated and recorded in Canadian dollar equivalents at the exchange rates prevailing at the transaction dates. Loans, investments and advances resulting from foreign currency transactions are, in turn, reported at year-end closing rates of exchange; net gains are credited to revenue as premium and discount on exchange, while net losses are charged to budgetary expenditure of the Department of Finance.

The allowance established to reflect estimated losses on realization of financial claims held by the Government has been authorized by the Minister of Finance and the President of the Treasury Board, under Section 63(2) of the Financial Administration Act.

Revenue received during the year on loans, investments and advances, is credited to return on investments; details are given in Section 11 of Volume II (Part II).

Chart A presents the total loans, investments and advances by category for the current fiscal year, while Chart B compares the total loans, investments and advances for the last five fiscal years. Table 6.1 presents the transactions and year-end balances of loans, investments and advances by category.

Transactions and balances are further summarized in Sections 1 and 2 of this volume.

Some tables in this section present the continuity of accounts, by showing the opening and closing balances, as well as receipts and other credits, and payments and other charges.

ENTERPRISE CROWN CORPORATIONS

Loans and advances to, and investments in, enterprise Crown corporations represent the balance of financial claims held by the Government against corporations for working capital, capital expenditure and other purposes, investment in the capital stock of corporations, and loans and advances to corporations for re-lending.

A Crown corporation means a parent Crown corporation or a wholly-owned subsidiary; a parent Crown corporation is wholly-owned directly by the Crown; a wholly-owned subsidiary is wholly-owned by one or more parent Crown corporations directly or indirectly through any number of subsidiaries each of which is wholly-owned directly or indirectly by one or more parent Crown corporations.

An enterprise Crown corporation is a Crown corporation that does not rely on Government funding as its principal source of revenue. These include selected corporations listed in Part I and all the corporations listed in Part II of Schedule III of the Financial Administration Act, the Bank of Canada and the Canadian Wheat Board.

An enterprise Crown corporation is ultimately accountable to Parliament, through a minister of the Crown, for the conduct of its affairs. Most of the enterprise Crown corporations listed in the schedules to the Financial Administration Act are agents of Her Majesty in right of Canada. This status is granted in one of the following ways:

(i) designation by Parliament, through a special act of incorporation;

(ii) statutory authorization; and,

(iii) proclamation by the Government Corporations Operation Act.

Financial statements of parent enterprise Crown corporations can be found in Volume III of the Public Accounts. The financial statements of wholly-owned subsidiaries of enterprise Crown corporations are also included in that volume whenever their accounts are not consolidated with those of the parent corporation. These financial statements are appended to those of the related parent enterprise Crown corporation.

Lending Institutions

Table 6.2 presents a summary of the balances and transactions for the various types of loans, investments and advances which were made to enterprise Crown corporations whose primary activity is to provide financial assistance.

Summary Financial Statements of Enterprise Crown Corporations

The following tables display details of the assets, liabilities, revenues and expenses of enterprise Crown corporations.

Tables 6.4 to 6.6 present the assets, liabilities, revenues, expenses and changes to the equity of enterprise corporations grouped in five segments. The segment of competitive, self-sustaining corporations consists of those corporations named in Part II of Schedule III of the Financial Administration Act.

For those corporations having other year ends, the data are based on unaudited interim financial statements which have been prepared on a basis consistent with the most recent audited financial statements.

The tables summarize the financial transactions and results of operations of each enterprise Crown corporation in accordance with its own respective accounting policies. Most Crown corporations follow the generally accepted accounting principles used by private sector companies, as outlined in the Handbook of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants.

Financial assets include cash, receivables, loans and investments. Physical assets and deferred charges represent the unexpensed portion of non-financial assets such as buildings, machinery and equipment in use or under construction, inventories and other items of expenditure which will be expensed as these assets are used. Financial assets and liabilities in respect of the Government and other Crown corporations represent the unpaid balances arising from financing transactions and normal operating activities. Borrowings from outside parties represent amounts repayable to institutional and other investors. Other liabilities are amounts due in respect of purchases, employee termination and pension benefits, accrued interest on borrowings, long-term capital leases and sundry accounts payable.

Revenues include financial assistance received or receivable from the Government in respect of the current year's operations. Expenses are segregated between those relating to outside parties, Government and other Crown corporations as well as other adjustments and dividends paid to outside parties. These adjustments may increase or reduce the amount of income accruing to the Government. Equity transactions with the Government include dividends declared, transfers of profits to the Government and non-current financial assistance provided by the Government.

These tables present consolidated financial information on parent enterprise Crown corporations and financial information on unconsolidated wholly-owned subsidiaries. Volume III of the Public Accounts includes a complete list of all parent Crown corporations, wholly-owned subsidiaries, other subsidiaries and associates.

Enterprise Crown corporations are also categorized as being either agents or non-agents of the Crown. Agency status may be expressly stated in the incorporating legislation or conferred under the provisions of the Government Corporations Operation Act. In accordance with Section 54 of the Financial Administration Act, the payment of all money borrowed by agent Crown corporations and interest thereon is a charge on and payable out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund. Such borrowings therefore constitute obligations of the Government and are recorded as such in the summary financial statements of Canada net of borrowings expected to be repaid directly by these corporations. The gross amounts of such borrowings are included under "Liabilities, Outside Parties". A summary of such borrowings and the changes during the year ended March 31, 1991 is presented in Table 6.7.

Borrowings by non-agent Crown corporations are not, in law, obligations of the Government. However, when the Government expressly guarantees such borrowings, they become potential obligations of the Government. Such guarantees amounted to $0.1 million as at March 31, 1991. A summary of borrowing transactions by non-agent enterprise Crown corporations is presented in Table 6.8. The maturity and currency of enterprise Crown corporations' borrowings is presented in Table 6.9. Contingent liabilities of enterprise Crown corporations are presented in Table 6.10.

A summary of financial assistance under Government budgetary appropriations to enterprise Crown corporations for the year ended March 31, 1991 is provided in Table 6.11. Differences in figures reported in Table 6.6 and those reported in Table 6.11 result from the use of different accounting policies and from items in transit.

Notes to Table 6.5 are an integral part of this table.

[1] This column records only that portion of financial assistance received or receivable from the federal Government that has been credited to operations. A further amount of $107,285 representing capital and operating appropriations received by the corporations is included in "Equity transactions with Government". Revenues "Other" include amounts generated from the sale of goods and services, investment income as well as grants where the corporations qualify as a member of a general class of recipients. The total financial assistance accounted for by the corporations during the year does not agree with the amount reported in Table 6.11 because of differences resulting from the different accounting policies followed.

Borrowings by Agent Enterprise Crown Corporations

Table 6.7 summarizes the borrowing transactions by agent enterprise Crown corporations made on behalf of Her Majesty. This information is published to satisfy Section 49 of the Financial Administration Act (FAA) which requires that "An annual statement of all borrowing transactions on behalf of Her Majesty shall be included in the Public Accounts". The borrowings are from other than the Government. In accordance with Section 54 of the FAA, the payment of all money borrowed by agent enterprise Crown corporations and interest thereon is a charge on and payable out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund. Such borrowings therefore constitute obligations of the Government and are recorded as such in the summary financial statements of Canada net of borrowings expected to be repaid directly by these corporations. As at March 31, 1991, an allowance for borrowings expected to be repaid by the Government was established at $3,550 million.

Borrowings by non-agent enterprise Crown corporations are not included in this table because such borrowings are not on behalf of Her Majesty. Table 6.8 provides information on borrowings of such corporations.

The United Kingdom Financial Agreement Act, 1946

Under authority of the United Kingdom Financial Agreement Act, a credit of $1,250,000,000 was extended to the Government of the United Kingdom to facilitate purchases by the United Kingdom of goods and services in Canada and to assist the United Kingdom in meeting transitional post-war deficits in its current balance of payments, in maintaining adequate reserves of gold and dollars, and in assuming the obligations of multilateral trade. The amount of the credit drawn by December 31, 1951 was to be repaid in 50 annual instalments beginning on that date, with interest at the rate of 2% per annum, with the final instalment on December 31, 2000.

Deferred principal

The agreement, as amended in 1957, provides for the deferment of interest in respect of the year 1956 and of seven instalments of principal and interest after December 31, 1956, under certain conditions. Interest for 1956, and interest and principal for 1957, 1964, 1965, 1968 and 1976 were deferred. The maturity of the deferrals is to commence December 31, 2001, and continue until December 31, 2006.

Developing countries—International development assistance

Loan assistance has been made to developing countries for international development assistance. Since April 1, 1986, loans under negotiated loan agreements in existence at March 31, 1986 were made under various budgetary authorities (including External Affairs Votes 35 and 35b, Appropriation Acts No 1, No 2 and No 3, 1990-91). Previous to this date, all loans to developing countries were paid under non-budgetary authority.

The following table presents the balances and transactions for the loans made to developing countries, together with their terms and conditions of repayments. The closing balance of loans to individual countries includes, where applicable, total payments made under both budgetary and non-budgetary authorities. The total budgetary payments to all countries are deducted as a lump sum amount under the caption "Payments made under budgetary authority" at the end of the table to arrive at the amount reported in Table 6.13 as international development assistance to developing countries.

Development of export trade

Pursuant to Section 31 of the Export Development Act, the Governor in Council may authorize the Corporation to make loans to foreign customers where the liability is for a term, or in an amount in excess of that normally assumed by the Corporation. Such loans are financed directly by payments out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund and are administered by the Corporation on behalf of the Government of Canada.

Since April 1, 1987, certain loans for the development of export trade are made under budgetary authority.

The following table presents the balances and transactions for the loans made to national governments, together with their terms and conditions of repayments. The closing balance of loans to national governments includes, where applicable, total payments made under both budgetary and non-budgetary authorities. The total budgetary payments are deducted as a lump sum amount under the caption "Payments made under budgetary authority" at the end of the table to arrive at the amount reported in Table 6.13.

North Atlantic Treaty Organization—Damage claims recoverable

Article VIII of the NATO Status of Forces Agreement signed April 4, 1949, as amended, deals with claims for damages to third parties arising from accidents in which a member of a visiting force is involved. This account is charged with the amount recoverable from other states, for claims for damages which took place in Canada, and is credited with recoveries.

The advances are non-interest bearing and have no specific repayment terms.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

This group records Canada's subscriptions to the capital of the African Development Bank, the Asian Development Bank, the Caribbean Development Bank, the Inter-American Development Bank, the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (i.e. World Bank), the International Development Association and the International Finance Corporation. It also includes loans and advances to other international organizations.

Capital subscriptions are made in part by the issuance of non-interest bearing, non-negotiable demand notes. The amounts advanced or loaned vary according to the needs of the organizations concerned, and the terms of the agreements.

The net position of the Government vis-à-vis the international organizations has been obtained by deducting from subscriptions, loans and advances, the non-interest bearing notes issued by Canada to these organizations. These notes, payable on demand, represent that portion of the investment by Canada in these organizations which has not yet been encashed by them. These notes are encashed subject to the financial requirements of these organizations.

Since April 1, 1986, note encashments, and cash subscriptions/loans to international financial institutions are now made under budgetary authority. However, subscriptions/loans made by the issuance of non-interest bearing notes continue to be under non-budgetary authority.

Table 6.14 presents a summary of the balances and transactions for the subscriptions, loans and advances to international organizations. The closing balance of loans/subscriptions to international financial institutions includes, where applicable, total loans/subscriptions made under both budgetary and non-budgetary authorities. The total budgetary payments to all international financial institutions are deducted as a lump sum amount under the caption "Payments made under budgetary authority" at the end of the table to arrive at the total amount reported in Table 6.1 as International organizations (net). In addition, Table 6.15 presents additional disclosure of information related to subscriptions to the capital of international development institutions, as well as future commitments and contingent liabilities related to international development assistance as disclosed in Note 9 to the audited financial statements of the Government of Canada in Section 2 of this volume.

[1] The subscriptions to the Association and the loans to the international financial institutions are used to lend funds to developing countries at rates favourable to the borrowers. In addition, as described earlier in this section, under the heading "National governments including developing countries", international development assistance has also been provided to developing countries.

[1] Foreign currencies were translated into Canadian dollars using the closing rates of exchange at March 31, 1991 ($1US = $1.1577 Cdn; 1SDR = $1.5523 Cdn).

[2] Commitments to the institutions will require future "Maintenance of value" payments.
According to the Articles of Agreement of the World Bank, countries are obliged to maintain the value of certain portions of their paid-in capital subscriptions and contributions. The World Bank has not had a workable standard of value since 1978 when the formal link between the US dollar and gold was broken. The World Bank agreed not to seek payment of these obligations pending the establishment of a new standard of value for the Bank. Maintenance of value obligations do not exist for International Development Association contributions. In October 1986, the Executive Board agreed upon the "1974 SDR" as a successor standard of value. The 1974 SDR is a fixed US dollar equivalent of the value of the SDR prevailing in 1974 ($1.20635 US = 1 SDR). Maintenance of value payments resumed July 1, 1987. It is expected that other institutions will follow this lead.

[3] Canadian currency equivalent of 42,000,000 units of account. One unit = $1.20635 US = $1.1556 Cdn as of May 1979.

[4] Canadian currency equivalent of 126,000,000 units of account. One unit = $1.20635 US = $1.1556 Cdn as of May 1979.

[5] These amounts are reflected as non-lapsing non-budgetary authorities in the External Affairs ministerial section of Volume II, Part I (Section 9).

[6] This amount excludes a maintenance of value payment of $1,192,625.

[7] Canada's subscription is for 35,892 shares. Payments are accounted for as a proportion of each share.

[8] Total subscription valued at $4,329,800,000 US. Callable value translated at $1 US = $1.1577 Cdn, representing approximately 93.4% of the total subscription.

[9] Canada's subcription will rise by a further 10,752 shares, valued at $1.5 billion Cdn. Of this, $45 million Cdn will be paid-in.

[10] Subscription and payment authorities are annual budgetary voted items presented in the Finance ministerial section of Volume II, Part I (Section10).

[11] There are no outstanding subscriptions other than the notes payable in Table 6.14. Accounting is based on dollar values rather than number of shares.

[12] This figure represents the amount of notes issued. $884,792,700 has not yet been encashed by IDA.

[13] Canada has agreed to lend the Enhanced Structural Adjustment Facility SDR 300 million and to subsidize the interest rate on the loan through a grant of approximately SDR 165 million, of which SDR 32.45 million has been paid-in. In addition, lines of credit of SDR 892.5 million have been made available to the IMF.

[14] Canada's subscription is for 2,965 shares. Payments are accounted for as a proportion of each share.

[15] Total subscription valued at $32,081,000 US. Callable value translated at $1 US =$1.1577 Cdn, representing 80% of the total subscription.

VETERANS' LAND ACT FUND ADVANCES

Advances have been made, under Parts I and III of the Veterans' Land Act, for the acquisition of land, permanent improvements, removal of encumbrances, purchase of stock and equipment, and protection of security. The total amount authorized to be outstanding at any time is $605,000,000.

A provision equal to 1/10 of the benefits to veterans was established each year up to and including 1978-79. Since that time, a forecast of requirements has been performed each year, and provisions are established as necessary. These provisions are charged to budgetary expenditure and credited to the allowance for conditional benefits account. These benefits come into effect only after certain conditions are fulfilled by the veterans. At the end of 10 years, the conditions having been met, the accumulated provision is charged to the allowance for conditional benefits account, and credited to the veteran's loan account.

SPECIFIED PURPOSE ACCOUNTS

Specified purpose accounts represent the recorded value of the financial obligations of the Government of Canada in its role as administrator of certain public moneys received or collected for specified purposes, under or pursuant to the legislation, trusts, treaties, undertakings or contracts. These public moneys may be paid out only for the purposes specified in or pursuant to the legislation, trusts, treaties, undertakings or contracts.

Because of the dedicated purposes of these moneys, specific accounts are required to be maintained to provide an accounting mechanism to ensure that the moneys are used only for the purposes for which they were received or collected. Legislation relating to some accounts permits investments to be made and, in certain cases, the balances of the accounts earn interest.

This section gives details of specified purpose accounts on which summary information was given in Sections 1 and 2 of this volume.

Chart A presents the total specified purpose accounts by category for the current fiscal year, while Chart B compares the total specified purpose accounts for the last five fiscal years. Table 7.1 presents the transactions and year-end balances of specified purpose accounts by category.

Some tables in this section present the continuity of accounts, by showing the opening and closing balances, as well as receipts and other credits, and payments and other charges.

The financial statements of the Canada Pension Plan Account and the Canada Pension Plan Investment Fund, the Government Annuities Account and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (Dependants) Pension Fund, together with the Auditor General's reports thereon, are presented at the end of this section.

Canada Pension Plan Account

The Canada Pension Plan is a compulsory contributory social insurance program which enables members of the labour force to acquire and retain protection for themselves and their families against loss of income due to retirement, disability or death. Established in 1965, the Plan applies in all parts of Canada, except the Province of Quebec which has a comparable plan.

Under existing arrangements, all benefits and expenses incurred in the administration of the plan are financed from contributions made by employees, employers and self-employed persons, and from interest earned from the investment of funds.

The Government's financial obligation, as administrator of the Canada Pension Plan, is limited to the balance in the Account.

Table 7.2 presents a summary of the balances and transactions in the Canada Pension Plan Account less investment in securities of the federal, provincial and territorial governments held by the Canada Pension Plan Investment Fund.

(e) funds invested during the year in the securities of the federal, provincial and territorial governments.

Provinces and territories are advised monthly of the amount of excess funds in the Canada Pension Plan Account that is available for the purchase of provincial and territorial securities. The amount available to each province and territory is the proportion that contributions made to the Plan during the preceding ten years in respect of employment in the province or territory bears to total contributions. Contributions received in respect of employment from employees outside Canada as well as any excess funds not invested in the securities of the provinces and territories are invested in the special non-marketable bonds of the Government of Canada.

Certain federal employees, such as the members of the Canadian Armed Forces, who are resident in the Province of Quebec, contribute to the Canada Pension Plan. The securities of Quebec which are purchased by the Plan relate to the contributions of these employees.

On the Statement of Assets and Liabilities of the Government of Canada, the investment in securities issued by the federal, provincial and territorial governments as charged to the Canada Pension Plan Investment Fund, is deducted from the Canada Pension Plan Account.

Superannuation Accounts

The superannuation accounts liability represents the Government's pension obligations for the three major Public Service plans and is reflected in the related specified purpose accounts as well as a supplementary allowance account. This account is used to record any shortfall between the pension liabilities and the superannuation accounts balances as determined on an actuarial basis for accounting purposes.

The Government provides pensions to retired employees or their dependants through pension schemes authorized by the Public Service Superannuation Act, the Canadian Forces Superannuation Act and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Superannuation Act. These pensions are indexed to the cost of living under the authority of the Supplementary Retirement Benefits Act. The Government's liabilities in respect of its employees and certain other contributors, are recorded in the relevant superannuation accounts.

Basic pensions are generally based on the best six consecutive years' average earnings and are accrued at 2% of these average earnings per year of service, to a maximum of 70% of final average earnings. Basic pensions are indexed annually (on January 1) to the cost of living.

Employee contributions for these benefits are 6 1/2% of pay, less contributions to the Canada or Quebec Pension Plan, plus 1% of pay towards indexing. For basic benefits, the employer matches equally the prior year's employee contributions for members of the Public Service, and contributes 1.8 and 2 times current year's contributions for members of the Canadian Forces and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police respectively. Indexation contributions are matched equally. As well, indexing payments in excess of pensioner's credits in the indexing account are charged directly to expenditure.

The Public Service Superannuation Act also covers the employees of certain Crown corporations, agencies and other institutions. Pension obligations for Crown corporations covered by the Public Service Superannuation Act are limited to matching their employees' contribution; any actuarial deficiency is borne by the Government.

Contributions are credited to the superannuation accounts. The basic accounts earn interest at rates that are based on Government of Canada long-term bond rates. The indexation accounts earn interest at rates based on the five-year Goverment of Canada bond rates. The interest rate earned by the basic accounts was about 11% in both 1991 and 1990. The rate for the indexation accounts in 1991 was 10.8% (9.8% for 1990).

As required under the Public Pensions Reporting Act, actuarial valuations are performed triennially on five pension plans including the related benefits payable under the Supplementary Retirement Benefits Act and the related assets of the Supplementary Retirement Benefits Account using the projected benefit method pro-rated on pensionable service under their respective Acts.

The most recent review date for the actuarial valuation for each pension plan was prepared as follows:

Public Service Pension Plan—December 31, 1989;

Canadian Forces Pension Plan—December 31, 1987;

Royal Canadian Mounted Police Pension Plan—December 31, 1989.

As at March 31, 1991, the actuarial reports for the Public Service Pension Plan and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Pension Plan were not tabled before Parliament.

In accordance with the legislation governing the basic portion of the three plans, the Minister of Finance has the authority to direct that any actuarial deficiency found will be credited to the appropriate account, and amortized to expenditure in five equal annual instalments commencing in the year in which the actuarial report is laid before Parliament. In the current year, there were no actuarial deficiencies relating to each of the basic accounts.

The indexing element of the Government's pension plans is valued in its account on a pay as-you-go basis. A supplementary allowance is used to record any shorfall, as determined on an actuarial basis for accounting purposes.

Table 7.4 presents a summary of the balances and transactions for the superannuation accounts. Receipts and other credits for the superannuation accounts consist of contributions from employees, related contributions from the Government and participating Public Service corporations, transfers from other pension funds, other contributions related to actuarial liability adjustments for basic pension accounts and interest. Payments and other charges for the superannuation accounts consist of payments of pensions, minimum benefits, cash termination allowances (lump sum payments to employees suffering a disability), refunds of contributions, and transfers to other plans. Adjustments to the supplementary allowance account result from actuarial valuations performed for accounting purposes.

Table 7.5 presents a summary of transactions in the superannuation accounts that resulted in charges to budgetary expenditure.

This account was established by the Supplementary Retirement Benefits Act, to provide for the payment of increased pension benefits resulting from indexation.

Increased superannuation benefits paid during the year due to indexation amounted to $1,165 million ($1,060 million in 1989-90), of which $1,047 million ($966 million in 1989-90) represents benefits to superannuates in excess of their share of contributions to the account which has been charged to budgetary expenditure. The payments charged to budgetary expenditure on behalf of contributors amounted to $602 million ($561 million in 1989-90) for the Public Service Superannuation Account of which it is estimated that $46 million ($45 million in 1989-90) pertains to former employees of Public Service corporations, $413 million ($376 million in 1989-90) for the Canadian Forces Superannuation Account, and $32 million ($29 million in 1989-90) for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Superannuation Account. An amount of $118 million ($94 million in 1989-90) was charged to the Supplementary Retirement Benefits Account.

Allowance for the Actuarial Liability for Employee Pensions

This account records the allowance for the actuarial present value of unfunded supplementary benefits in respect of benefits earned or in pay, as well as for the unfunded pension liability of the federally appointed judges pension plan and the Members of Parliament retiring allowances as at March 31, 1991.

As a result of the annual actuarial valuation for accounting purposes, adjustments were required to the allowance to reflect:

—an overstatement of $1,400 million as described in Note 7 i. in Section 2 of this volume,

—a reduction of $1,367 million which recognizes a permanent reduction from last year in the long-term pension liabilities due to the implementation of wage restraint throughout the Public Service, and

—a reduction of $533 million for the amortization of estimation adjustments due to changes in experience and in actuarial assumptions leaving $6,100 million to be amortized in future years.

The amortization period is based on the expected average remaining service life (EARSL) of the related employee group and are as follows:

Pension plan	EARSL (Years)
Public Service	13
Canadian Forces	13
Royal Canadian Mounted Police	14
Judges	12
Members of Parliament	8

Government Annuities Account

This account was established by the Government Annuities Act, and modified by the Government Annuities Improvement Act, which discontinued sales of annuities in 1975. The account is valued on an actuarial basis each year, with the deficit or surplus charged or credited to the Consolidated Revenue Fund.

The purpose of the Government Annuities Act was to assist Canadians to provide for their later years, by the purchase of Government annuities. The Government Annuities Improvement Act increased the rate of return and flexibility of Government annuity contracts.

Receipts and other credits consist of premiums received, funds reclaimed from the Consolidated Revenue Fund for previously untraceable annuitants, earned interest and items transferred from previous years' revenue to cover the actuarial deficit. Payments and other charges represent matured annuities, the commuted value of death benefits, premium refunds and withdrawals, and actuarial surpluses and unclaimed items transferred to non-tax revenue. The amounts of unclaimed annuities, related to untraceable annuitants, are transferred to non-tax revenue.

During the year, debts totalling $1,162 were written-off pursuant to Employment and Immigration Vote 6c, Appropriation Act No 4, 1990-91.

Deposit and Trust Accounts

Deposit and trust accounts is a group of liabilities representing the Government's financial obligations in its role as administrator of certain moneys that it has received or collected for specified purposes and that it will pay out accordingly. To the extent that the funds received are represented by securities, these are deducted from the corresponding accounts to show the Government's net liability.

Table 7.10 presents a summary of the balances and transactions in deposit and trust accounts.

Under the Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements Act, the Government of Canada is empowered to enter into agreements with provincial and territorial governments, to collect income taxes on their behalf, and to make payments to them with respect to such taxes.

The Government of Canada entered into agreements with provinces and territories (Quebec excepted), to collect individual income tax, and, with provinces and territories (Ontario and Quebec excepted), to collect corporation income tax, and, to pay in equal monthly instalments to such provinces and territories, the estimated revenue to be produced by the respective provincial and territorial taxes.

At the beginning of each year, the Minister of Finance estimates the amount of the payments, for the taxation year ending in that year, to provinces and territories that have entered into agreements. These estimates are adjusted to actual amounts at a later date. Adjustments are to be made not later than March 31 of the year following that in which the taxation year ends.

Table 7.13 presents a summary of the balances and transactions in the provincial tax collection agreements account.

This account was established pursuant to Section 21 of the Financial Administration Act, to record the liability to shareholders who have not presented their shares for payment. The closing balance represents 8,932 shares of Petro-Canada Enterprises Inc at $120.14 per share.

Cartierville Airport account

In accordance with Section 21 of the Financial Administration Act, and following the sale of the Cartierville Airport by the Government to Canadair Limited, this special account was established to hold in deposit $5,000,000 and to record in the same account the interest earned as approved by the Minister of Finance.

Periodically, this account will be debited with payments to Canadair Limited to reimburse them for repairs and improvement expenses incurred at the Cartierville Airport.

1. (a) Description and authority

The Canada Pension Plan is a 1965 Act of Parliament, to establish a comprehensive program of old age pensions and supplementary benefits in Canada, payable to, and in respect of, contributors. This compulsory and contributory social insurance program (the Plan) enables members of the labour force to acquire and retain protection for themselves and their families against loss of income due to retirement, disability or death. The Plan applies in all parts of Canada, except for the Province of Quebec which has a parallel plan.

Under the existing Canada Pension Plan legislation, benefits and expenses incurred in the administration of the Plan are financed from the contributions made by employees, employers and self-employed persons and from interest earned on the investment of funds not immediately needed for benefits and administrative costs.

The Canada Pension Plan Account (the Account) was established in the accounts of Canada by Section 108.(1) of the Canada Pension Plan to record the contributions, interest, benefits and expenses of the Plan. The authority to pay benefits under the Plan is limited to the balance of the Account which was $41,120 million at March 31, 1991.

The Canada Pension Plan Investment Fund (the Fund) was established in the accounts of Canada by Section 109.(1) of the Canada Pension Plan to record the investment in securities of the provinces, territories and Canada.

(b) Financing

Legislation requires that a review of the 25-year schedule of contribution rates shall take place prior to January 1, 1992 and all subsequent reviews shall take place every fifth year thereafter. Based on this review, the Minister of Finance and ministers of the Crown from the included provinces and territories shall review the rates set out in the schedule, and make recommendations as to whether those rates should be changed and as to whether the schedule should be amended to include contribution rates for an additional five years.

Any major amendments to the Plan that would alter the general level of benefits or the rate of contributions, requires agreement by at least two-thirds of the included provinces having an aggregate of not less than two-thirds of the population.

The current schedule of contribution rates is 4.4% for the 1990 calendar year and 4.6% for the 1991 calendar year. The contributions are (i) by employees, 2.2% of earnings over $2,800 for 1990 and 2.3% of earnings over $3,000 for 1991, subject to maximum payments of $574.20 for 1990 and $632.50 for 1991, with matching contributions by employers and (ii) by self-employed persons, 4.4% of earnings over $2,800 for 1990 and 4.6% of earnings over $3,000 for 1991, subject to maximum payments of $1,148.40 for 1990 and $1,265.00 for 1991.

The most recent Actuarial Report as at December 31, 1988, by the Chief Actuary of the Office of the Superintendent of Financial Institutions, reveals that the desirable 2:1 ratio (in accordance with the provisions of section 113.1 (4) (c)) of the Canada Pension Plan Account balance to projected annual payments, will be maintained until 1999. This report was tabled in Parliament in January 1990.

In completing their recent quinquennial review of the CPP financing the Finance Ministers agreed on January 28, 1991 that the annual increase in contribution rates would be 0.20% for calendar years 1992 to 1996, 0.25% from 1997 to 2006, and 0.20% from 2007 to 2016. Under these conditions the Account balance to payment ratio is projected to remain at about 2:1 or above every year until 2016.

2. Accounting policies

Canada Pension Plan Account

The amounts credited and charged to the Account are in accordance with Sections 108.(2) and 108.(3) of the Canada Pension Plan, respectively. Contributions, interest and benefits are recorded on a cash basis. Contributions are received from Revenue Canada—Taxation based on estimates of collections for the current year and adjustments to the estimates of prior years. Expenses are recorded on an accrual basis. The balance of the Account represents the accumulated excess of contributions and interest over benefits and expenses to date.

Canada Pension Plan Investment Fund

The amounts charged and credited to the Fund are in accordance with Section 109.(2) of the Canada Pension Plan. All securities held are carried at cost, are non-negotiable and have a term of 20 years or such lesser period as may be determined by the Minister of Finance on the recommendation of the Chief Actuary of the Office of the Superintendent of Financial Institutions.

The weighted average rate of interest on securities purchased during the year was 10.85% (1990: 9.90%).

4. Expenses

Expenses of the Account represent the costs of services charged by six federal government departments: Health and Welfare (administration); Revenue Canada—Taxation (collection of contributions); Supply and Services (cheque issue and computer services); Public Works (accommodation); Employment and Immigration (assignment and maintenance of social insurance numbers); and the Office of the Superintendent of Financial Institutions (actuarial services).

5. Investment in securities

Operating balances on deposit with the Receiver General in excess of estimated cash requirements for the following three-month period are available for the purchase of securities of the provinces, territories and Canada. As required by the Canada Pension Plan, the monies available for security purchases are allocated to the provinces and territories based on the proportion of contributions credited to the Account during the preceding 10 years in respect of employment in a given province or a territory to the total contributions in those years. The portion attributed to certain other employees outside Canada continues to be invested in securities of Canada.

The securities of Quebec relate to the contributions of certain federal employees, such as members of the Canadian Armed Forces, who are residents in the Province of Quebec.

6. Contingencies

One legal action is pending in the Federal Court of Canada, Trial Division citing the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms. This action, by a claimant for survivors' benefits, alleges that certain provisions of the Canada Pension Plan legislation discriminate on the basis of age. The estimated claim for this action is $17,329. If it is successful, similar claims against the Canada Pension Plan Account could arise amounting to $207 million.

At the end of the 1990-91 fiscal year there were 6,932 appeals at various stages of review within the Plan. The majority of appeals were for medical disability. The estimated claims for these appeals against the Canada Pension Plan Account could be $40 million.

Government Annuities Account

AUDITOR'S REPORT

TO THE MINISTER OF EMPLOYMENT AND IMMIGRATION

I have audited the balance sheet of the Government Annuities Account as at March 31, 1991 and the statements of operations and actuarial liabilities and changes in financial position for the year then ended. These financial statements are the responsibility of the Account's management. My responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on my audit.

I conducted my audit in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that I plan and perform an audit to obtain reasonable assurance whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation.

In my opinion, these financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the Account as at March 31, 1991 and the results of its operations and the changes in its financial position for the year then ended in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles.

Further, in my opinion, the transactions of the Account that have come to my notice during my examination of the financial statements have, in all significant respects, been in accordance with section 15 of the Government Annuities Act, section 15 of the Government Annuities Improvement Act, and the Regulations.

MARCH 31, 1991

1. Authority and purpose

The Government Annuities Account was established in 1908 by the Government Annuities Act, (the "Act"), as modified by the Government Annuities Improvement Act (the "Improvement Act").

The purpose of the Act was to assist individuals and groups of Canadians to provide for their later years by purchasing Government annuities. The Improvement Act increased the rate of return on Government annuity contracts to a rate of seven percent, increased their flexibility and discontinued future sales.

The Account is administered by the Canada Employment and Immigration Commission and operates through the Consolidated Revenue Fund.

2. Significant accounting policies

(a) Basis of accounting

The accounts of the Government Annuities Account are maintained on an accrual basis.

(b) Actuarial liabilities

Actuarial liabilities comprise: (i) in respect of unmatured annuities, accumulated premiums and accrued interest, and (ii) in respect of matured annuities, the present value of such annuities actuarially determined on the basis of such rate or rates of interest and mortality tables as is prescribed.

(c) Actuarial surplus

At the end of any fiscal year, the recorded amount of actuarial liabilities may be different than the calculated amount of actuarial liabilities. The difference represents an actuarial surplus or deficit which is remitted to or recovered from the Consolidated Revenue Fund.

(d) Interest from Canada

Interest from Canada is calculated on actuarial liabilities as prescribed by the Improvement Act.

(e) Unclaimed annuities

Unclaimed annuities represent amounts transferred to the Consolidated Revenue Fund in respect of annuities that could not be paid because the annuitants could not be located.

(f) Services provided without charge

Administrative services are provided to the Account by the Canada Employment and Immigration Commission and by other Government departments without charge.

Government Annuities Account—Concluded

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
MARCH 31, 1991—Concluded

3. Actuarial liabilities

The method utilized to calculate the actuarial liabilities of $861,989,000 (1990—$904,327,000) is in accordance with subsection 15(1) of the Government Annuities Improvement Act and the Regulations pertaining thereto.

The Government Annuities Regulations provide that the Mortality Tables to be used in determining the values of annuities shall be the Annuity Tables for 1949 modified by Projection Scale C.

The Commission undertakes an annual review of mortality experience to monitor the appropriateness of the mortality tables for valuation purposes. The results of the last study, completed in February 1991, indicate that the mortality tables in use continue to be appropriate for such purposes.

NOTES TO THE FINANCIAL STATEMENT MARCH 31, 1991

1. Description of the plan

The following brief description of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (Dependants) Pension Fund is for general information only. For more complete information, reference should be made to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Pension Continuation Act (the Act). All monetary transactions of the Fund are made through the Consolidated Revenue Fund (CRF).

(a) General

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police (Dependants) Pension Fund was established in 1934 pursuant to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act and is currently operated under Part IV of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Continuation Act (effective 1959) and the related Regulations.

The Act provides for members of the Force, other than commissioned officers, appointed before March 1, 1949, to purchase certain survivorship benefits for their dependants by payment of specified contributions.

(b) Funding Policy

All members under Part IV of the Act have now retired and, as such, there are no more active members contributing to the Fund; however, many retired members are still making instalment payments in respect of previous elections made before their retirement.

Section 56 of the Act directs the Minister of Finance to have an actuarial valuation of the Fund made at least once every 5 years. If the actuarial valuation discloses a surplus, the Governor in Council may, by order, increase pensions. If there is an actuarial deficiency, the Governor in Council may direct that there be credited to the Fund, out of any unappropriated moneys in the Consolidated Revenue Fund, such amount as may be required to re-establish solvency of the Fund.

(c) Government Contributions

So far the Government of Canada has not made any contributions to the Fund as a guarantor of its solvency. On the other hand, the Government of Canada credits the Fund with interest computed quarterly on the balance of the Fund at the end of the preceding quarter. For the quarter ending March 31, 1991, the average rate at which interest was credited was 2.644%, per quarter, which is equivalent to an annual rate of approximately 11.0%.

(d) Basic Death Benefits

The following benefits, as applicable, are payable on the death of a member who has made the scheduled contributions and has not withdrawn any part of them from the Fund.

i) Widows' Pensions

The surviving widow of a member is entitled to a pension equal to 1.5% of the member's final pay multiplied by his years of credited service. The pension is payable for life with a guarantee that the total payments shall be no less than the member's contributions.

ii) Eligible Children's Annuities

An annuity, not exceeding 7% of the member's final pay, is payable to each surviving child eligible in accordance with the provisions of the Act at that time. If there is no surviving widow or if the widow dies before the child's annuity ceases, the amount of the annuity doubles.

iii) Lump Sum Benefits

If a member is not survived by a widow, a lump sum payment is made to the dependants and relatives of the member who are, in the opinion of the Minister, best entitled to share the benefit. The lump sum amount is equal to the actuarial value of a pension to a hypothetical surviving widow 20 years older than the member at his death, but not exceeding 75 years of age.

iv) Benefit Limitations

Under certain circumstances, the basic death benefits payable to a surviving widow are smaller than those normally available. This type of limitation can occur when a member marries after age 60; in that case, the value of the pension to the widow cannot exceed the lump sum payable if he were not survived by a widow. A similar limitation applies to a member who marries before age 60 after termination of service and dies within 5 years after such marriage, unless the member satisfies the Commissioner he is in sound health.

Benefit limitations are also applied to restrict the aggregate of the annual basic pension and annuities payable to the widow and children, to not exceed 70% of the member's final annual pay and allowances.

(e) Dividends on Death Benefits

The Act also provides that if the Fund is substantially in excess of the amount required to make adequate provision for the prospective payments to be made out of it, the Governor in Council may by order increase the benefits provided under Part IV, or any of them, in such manner as may appear equitable and expedient.

To date, these benefit increases have taken the form of proportionate dividends applied to all basic death benefits, both accrued and prospective. As a result, the pension payments made in the fiscal year include an increase of 350% (330% in 1990) of the basic pension amount.

(f) Withdrawal Benefits

A retired non-commissioned officer who did not elect to withdraw his contributions from the Fund upon retirement, retains the right to do so at any time thereafter; however, all his rights under Part IV and those of his dependants shall cease upon such election.

All returns of contributions are made without interest.

2. Significant accounting policies

(a) Basis of presentation

This financial statement is prepared on the going concern basis and presents the aggregate financial position of the Fund as a separate financial reporting entity independent of the sponsor and Fund member.

(b) Revenues and expenditures are recorded on the accrual basis.

3. Supplementary information

The most recent actuarial valuation was made as at March 31, 1988. The valuation disclosed an actuarial surplus of $2,422,873. A portion, estimated at $1,346,000, of this surplus was distributed by an increase in the basic pension amount of 20% as at April 1, 1989 and a further increase of 20% as at April 1, 1990.

The calculations of the actuarial present value of contributions and of the pension benefits (including accrued benefits arising from previously authorized surplus distributions at the date of the actuarial valuation) were made using an annual interest rate of 6%. This 6% interest rate reflects the actuary's long term expectation and is much less than the anticipated rate which interest will be credited to the Fund in the near and medium term. The resulting short and medium term anticipated excess interest credits are to provide inflationary protection for the foreseeable future. If currently higher rates of interest had been used in the valuation, it could have led to a significantly higher actuarial surplus.

An actuarial valuation as at March 31, 1990 is currently being finalized.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE ACCOUNTS

Foreign exchange accounts represent financial claims and obligations of the Government of Canada which are identified with Canada's foreign exchange operations. Financial claims and obligations denominated in foreign currencies are reported at Canadian dollar equivalents at March 31. Net gains resulting from the translation of the net assets denominated in foreign currencies, to Canadian dollar equivalents as at March 31, are credited to revenue as premium and discount on exchange, and net losses are charged to budgetary expenditure of the Department of Finance.

Chart A compares the foreign exchange assets and liabilities for the last five fiscal years. Table 9.1 presents the continuity of each foreign exchange account, by showing the opening and closing balances, as well as receipts and other credits, and payments and other charges. It should be noted, however, that this table excludes unmatured debt payable in foreign currencies, amounting to $4,526 million as at March 31, 1991 ($5,675 million as at March 31, 1990); details relating to these obligations are presented in Section 10 of this volume.

International Reserves Held in the Exchange Fund Account

This account records the moneys advanced from the Government of Canada to the Exchange Fund Account, in Canadian and other currencies, for the purchase of gold, foreign currencies and securities, and Special Drawing Rights (SDRs).

The Exchange Fund Account is operated under the provisions of the Currency Act. In accordance with this Act, audited financial statements for the Exchange Fund Account are prepared for each calendar year. The financial statements as at December 31, 1990, together with the Auditor General's report thereon, are found at the end of this section.

Table 9.2 shows foreign exchange reserves held by and advances to the Exchange Fund Account as at March 31, 1991. Gold held by the Account is valued at 35 SDRs per fine ounce ($54.33 Cdn as at March 31, 1991 and $53.25 Cdn as at March 31, 1990).

In 1990-91, payments and other charges consisted of advances to the Exchange Fund Account in the amount of $62,649.5 million, a valuation adjustment of $35.7 million and an adjustment of $40.6 million to recognize the net income of the Exchange Fund Account for the period January 1 to March 31. Receipts and other credits consisted of repayments of advances of $59,052.5 million.

International Monetary Fund—Subscriptions

This account records the value of Canada's subscription (its "quota") to the capital of the International Monetary Fund (IMF).

The amount by which the sum of Canada's subscriptions plus loans to the IMF under special facilities exceeds the IMF's holdings of Canadian dollars represents the amount of foreign exchange which Canada is entitled to draw from the IMF on demand for balance of payments purposes. The subscription is expressed in terms of the SDR, a unit of account defined in terms of a "basket" of five major currencies.

Canada has accumulated its subscriptions through settlements to the IMF in Canadian dollars, gold and SDRs. Annual maintenance of value payments are made to, or received from, the IMF when the Canadian dollar depreciates or appreciates against the SDR, in order to maintain the SDR-value of the IMF's holdings of Canadian dollars. In 1990-91, payments and other charges consisted of a maintenance of value adjustment of $83.7 million and a valuation adjustment of $7.4 million.

International Monetary Fund—Notes Payable

This account records non-marketable, non-interest bearing notes issued by the Government of Canada to the IMF. These notes are payable on demand and are subject to redemption or re-issue, depending on the needs of the IMF for Canadian currency.

Canadian dollar holdings of the IMF include these notes and a small working balance (initially equal to one-quarter of one percent of Canada's subscription) held on deposit at the Bank of Canada. In 1990-91, notes payable to the IMF decreased by $4.9 million.

Special Drawing Rights Allocations

This account records the value of SDRs allocated to Canada by the IMF. The Special Drawing Right is an international currency created by the IMF, and allocated to countries participating in its Special Drawing Rights Department. It represents a liability of Canada, as circumstances could arise whereby Canada could be called upon to repay these allocations, in part or in total.

As an asset, SDRs represent rights to purchase currencies of other countries participating in the IMF's Special Drawing Rights Department, as well as to make payments to the IMF itself. All SDRs allocated to Canada by the IMF have either been used to settle subscriptions in the IMF, or have been advanced to the Exchange Fund Account.

There was no allocation of SDRs by the IMF to Canada during the year. In 1990-91, receipts and other credits consisted of a valuation adjustment of $24.1 million.

SUPPLEMENTARY STATEMENT
Exchange Fund Account

AUDITOR'S REPORT

TO THE MINISTER OF FINANCE

I have audited the balance sheet of the Exchange Fund Account as at December 31, 1990 and the statement of income for the year then ended. These financial statements are the responsibility of the Department of Finance. My responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on my audit.

I conducted my audit in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that I plan and perform an audit to obtain reasonable assurance whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by the Department of Finance, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation.

In my opinion, these financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the Exchange Fund Account as at December 31, 1990 and the results of its operations for the year then ended in accordance with the accounting policies set out in Note 2 to the financial statements.

Further, in my opinion, the Exchange Fund Account for the year ended December 31, 1990 has complied, in all significant respects, with the applicable provisions of the Currency Act.

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
DECEMBER 31, 1990

1. Authority and objective

The Exchange Fund Account (the Account) is governed by Part II of the Currency Act (the Act). The Account is in the name of the Minister of Finance and is administered by the Bank of Canada as fiscal agent.

The main objective of the Account is to aid in the control and protection of the external value of the Canadian dollar and the Minister acquires or sells for the Account those assets which are deemed appropriate for this purpose in accordance with the Act.

2. Significant accounting policies

The following accounting policies, which conform to the stated accounting policies of the Government of Canada, have been applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

(a) Valuation of assets

US dollar and other securities, are adjusted for amortized premiums and discounts where applicable. These securities and Special Drawing Rights (SDRs) include accrued interest. The SDR is a unit of account created by the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and defined in terms of a "basket" of five major currencies.

Gold includes gold loans and accrued interest on gold loans. The Minister of Finance valued gold in the Account at 35 SDRs per fine ounce. Cash and short-term deposits include accrued interest where applicable.

(b) Translation of foreign currencies and SDRs

Assets and liabilities denominated in foreign currencies are translated into Canadian and US dollars at the year-end exchange rates in foreign exchange markets. Assets and liabilities denominated in SDRs are first translated into US dollars at the year-end US dollar value of the SDR, as calculated by the IMF, and then into Canadian dollars. Investment income in foreign currencies is translated into Canadian dollars at the foreign exchange rates prevailing on the date the income is recorded. The assets and liabilities denominated in foreign currencies and SDRs have been translated into Canadian dollars at the following year-end exchange rates:

	1990	1989
US dollar	1.159900	1.158500
Japanese yen	0.008569	0.008048

Special Drawing Right	1.650143	1.522454
Deutsche mark	0.778757	0.684674

(c) Investment income

Investment income is recorded on the accrual basis and includes interest earned, amortization of premiums and discounts, and gains and losses on the sale of securities.

(d) Disposition of net income or loss

The net income or loss for the year, including net valuation gains or losses, is payable or chargeable to the Consolidated Revenue Fund (CRF) of the government of Canada within three months after the end of the year in accordance with the Act.

(e) Services provided without charge

The Bank of Canada provides, without charge to the Account, the administrative, custodial, and fiscal agency services. The CRF does not charge interest on advances to the Account (Note 8).

Exchange Fund Account—Concluded

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
DECEMBER 31, 1990—Concluded

7. Official international reserve assets

The Account is the principal repository of Canada's official international reserves. At December 31, 1990 total reserves, as published by the Department of Finance, amounted to $US 18.6 billion (1989—$US 16.8 billion) of which the EFA accounted for $US 14.5 billion (1989—$US 13.6 billion). The remainder $US 4.1 billion (1989—$US 3.2 billion) is held by the Bank of Canada and the CRF.

8. Due to the Consolidated Revenue Fund—Advances

The Account is funded by advances from the CRF. They are currently limited to C$ 25 billion by Order in Council dated June 30, 1988. The CRF does not charge interest on advances to the Account. The advances from the CRF are:

	1990	1989
	(in millions of Canadian dollars)
Canadian dollars	8,346	8,018
US dollars	4,454	4,814
Special Drawing Rights	633	584
Japanese yen	515	483
Swiss francs	183	300
	14,131	14,199

The proceeds of Canada's borrowings in foreign currency and allocations of SDRs by the IMF have been advanced from the CRF to the Account. Repayment of foreign currency debt is made using the resources of the Account. Interest payable by Canada on borrowings in foreign currencies and charges on SDR allocations for the Account are charged directly to the CRF.

9. Commitments

Under swap arrangements with the Bank of Canada, the Account sells US dollars to the Bank and agrees to repurchase these amounts at the same exchange rates at which they were sold. These swaps result in a decrease in the Account's assets and in the advances from the CRF. The effect is offset when the swaps are reversed.

Short-term swap arrangements with the Bank of Canada are undertaken to assist in the Bank's cash management operations. Outstanding swaps with the Bank of Canada at year end amounted to:

1990		1989

(in millions of dollars)
3,420	3,965	2,431	2,820

11. Subsequent event

In February 1991, the Department of Finance implemented a new program of short-term US dollar/Canadian dollar swaps between the Account and major financial institutions. The purpose of the program is to assist the government in managing its domestic cash balances in a more cost-effective manner. Under this initiative, US dollars held by the Account are sold to financial institutions for Canadian dollars with a simultaneous agreement to repurchase the US dollars in the forward market.

In February 1991, foreign exchange swaps with major Canadian financial institutions amounted to US $1.2 billion resulting in a corresponding decrease in the Account's assets and in Canada's official international reserves. The effect is offset when the swaps are reversed.

Certain comparative figures have been reclassified to conform to the current year's presentation.

UNMATURED DEBT

Unmatured debt represents financial obligations resulting from certificates of indebtedness issued by the Government of Canada that have not yet become due.

The Government's holdings of its own securities have been deducted from unmatured debt, to report the amount of the Government's liabilities to outside parties.

Some tables in this section present the continuity of accounts, by showing the opening and closing balances, as well as issues and retirements.

Chart A presents unmatured debt by category for the current fiscal year while Chart B compares unmatured debt for the last five fiscal years. Table 10.1 presents the transactions and year-end balances of unmatured debt.

Note: this table includes unmatured debt issued by the Government of Canada. Borrowings of agent enterprise Crown corporations which are unconditional obligations of the Government, but not included in unmatured debt, can be found in Table 10.11.

[1] Certain Crown corporations are part of the Government's reporting entity. Additional information is provided in Section 5 of this volume and in the audited financial statements (Section 2 of this volume).

Marketable Bonds

Marketable bonds are interest-bearing certificates of indebtedness issued by the Government of Canada, and have the following characteristics:

—bought and sold on the open market;

—payable in Canadian or foreign currency;

—subject to call or redemption before maturity;

—fixed dates of maturity;

—interest payable either in coupon or registered form; and,

—face value guaranteed at maturity.

Registered marketable bonds are transferable by endorsement and delivery by one holder to another. Bearer marketable bonds need not be endorsed.

Table 10.2 presents a summary of the balances and transactions for marketable bonds. Since most of the marketable bonds are not subject to call or redemption before maturity, exceptions only are noted in the table.

The year-end balances of marketable bonds payable in foreign currencies were translated into Canadian dollars using the closing rates of exchange at March 31, 1991.

[2] Subject to redemption before maturity.

[3] While the terms of the issue remain unaltered from the bondholders' perspective, the Government's Japanese yen liability was converted through a "currency swap" into a floating rate U.S. dollar liability which is based on 6-month London Inter-bank Offered Rate (LIBOR).

[1] This amount represents long-term accounts receivable and other amounts, which if included, would cause the aging schedule to be misleading.

Other receivables

This account records public moneys received after March 31, but applicable to the year just ended. It includes refunds of old year expenditure received prior to the closing of the accounts, and receipts to be credited to non-tax revenue accounts, where the omission of the credits in the old year would tend to make the accounting incomplete or inconsistent.

Accounts receivable of consolidated Crown corporations

This account records the financial claims of consolidated Crown corporations.

Cash in hands of collectors and in transit

This account records public moneys received by public officers prior to April 1, but not deposited to the credit of the Receiver General for Canada in the Bank of Canada, before that date.

Moneys received after March 31 but applicable to the current year

Public moneys received after March 31, but applicable to the year just ended, are recorded in this account.

This account includes receipts to be credited to asset, liability, (in exceptional cases) tax revenue accounts, where the omission of the credits in the old year would tend to make the accounting incomplete or inconsistent.

Other cash—Consolidated Crown corporations

This account records the cash position of the consolidated Crown corporations. These funds are not public moneys to the credit of the Receiver General for Canada but are for the exclusive use of these Crown corporations.

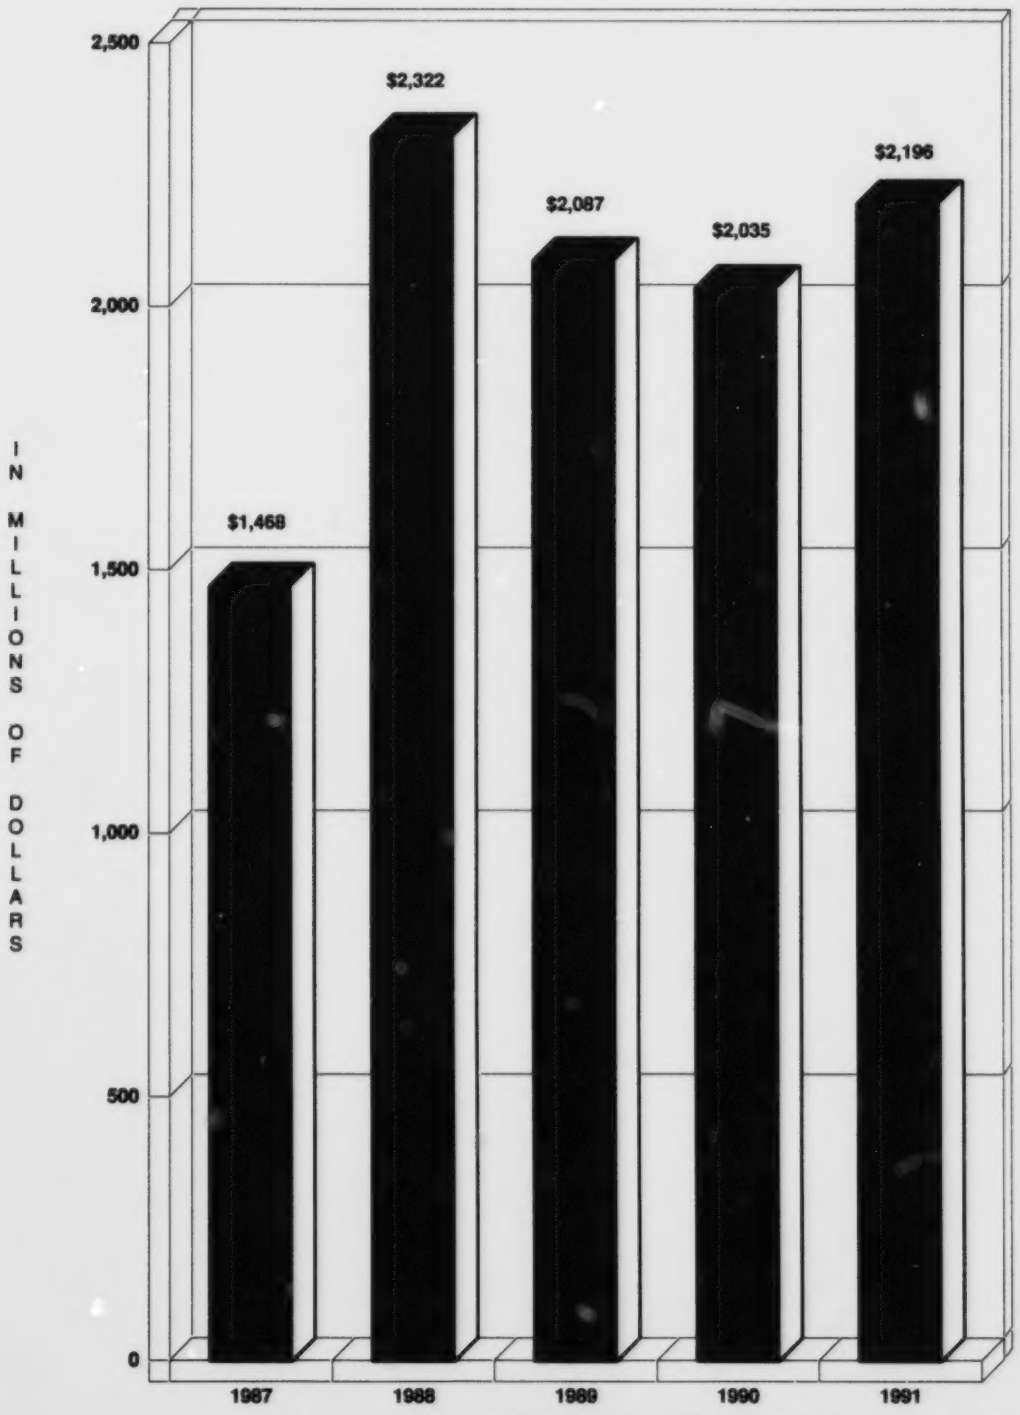
CASH IN TRANSIT



Cash

The Government's cash account represents public moneys on deposit at March 31, to the credit of the Receiver General for Canada, with the Bank of Canada, chartered banks and other financial institutions.

The cash position of the Government is affected not only by budgetary transactions, but also by non-budgetary, foreign exchange and unmatured debt transactions, all of which must be taken into account when considering the full scope of the Government's financial operations.

Table 11.5 presents a summary of the balances and related transactions in current and special Receiver General deposits. Chart C compares cash for the last five fiscal years.

The year-end balances denominated in foreign currencies have been translated into Canadian dollar equivalents at year-end closing rates of exchange. Foreign currencies held include United Kingdom pounds sterling, United States dollars, Belgian, Swiss and French francs, and West German marks.

Fixed Assets

Fixed assets are tangible, durable items of value, including major additions or alterations thereto, from which benefits are expected to be derived during their useful lives.

The fixed assets of the Government, which include land, engineering structures and works (such as canals, harbours and roads), buildings, and machinery and equipment, are charged to budgetary expenditure at the time of acquisition or construction, in accordance with the accounting policies of the Government of Canada which are described in Note 1 to the audited financial statements (Section 2 of this volume).

Accumulated Deficit

The accumulated deficit is the account recording the net sum of annual deficits and surpluses of the Government of Canada since Confederation, together with certain amounts charged or credited directly to this account. The accumulated deficit is also equal to the excess of recorded liabilities over total financial assets.

A Statement of Accumulated Deficit is published in Section 2 of this volume.

Table 11.8 presents a five year comparative statement of the accumulated deficit, in terms of total liabilities and total financial assets. Chart D compares the accumulated deficit in terms of total liabilities and total financial assets for the last five fiscal years.

OTHER INFORMATION

Contractual Commitments

A contractual commitment represents a written obligation to outside organizations or individuals as a result of a contract. The nature of the Government's activities requires it to enter into contracts that are significant in relation to its current financial position or that will materially affect the level of future expenditure. Major capital assets of the Government are either purchased outright or leased. Where a lease transfers substantially all of the benefits and risks incidental to ownership of the property to the lessee, it is considered a capital lease. All other leases are classified as operating leases. Contractual commitments can be classified into four categories: fixed assets, purchases, operating leases and capital leases.

All outstanding contractual commitments of $100 million or more per project at year end are reported in the case of fixed assets, purchases and operating leases. In the case of capital leases, all capital lease arrangements with total minimum lease payments remaining at year end in excess of $1 million per contract are reported.

In accordance with the Government's significant accounting policies, the contractual commitments of consolidated Crown corporations are included with those of the Government.

Fixed assets, purchases and operating leases

Table 11.9 provides details of contractual commitments that involve fixed assets, operating leases and purchases. It discloses individual contractual commitments by category and by entity. Contractual commitments are summarized in Note 14 to the audited financial statements in Section 2 of this volume.

Fixed assets are tangible, durable items of value, including major additions or alterations thereto and including military equipment, from which benefits are expected to be derived during their useful life and including land.

Purchase commitments are commitments supported by a contract to supply goods or services. An operating lease is a lease in which the lessor does not substantially transfer all the benefits and risks incident to ownership of property. There were no contractual operating leases in excess of $100 million outstanding at year end.

Capital Leases

Table 11.10 provides details of commitments under capital lease arrangements which are summarized in Note 14 to the audited financial statements in Section 2 of this volume. A capital lease is a lease that, from the point of view of the Government, transfers substantially all the benefits and risks incident to ownership of the asset to the Government. Table 11.11 presents commitments under capital lease arrangements in order of maturity. Table 11.12 presents details of purchase options exercised during the year.

Insurance Programs of Agent Enterprise Crown Corporations

At present, three Crown corporations operate insurance programs as agents of Her Majesty. An insurance program is a program where the insured, an outside party, pays an insurance fee which is credited to an insurance fund or provision operated by the corporation. The amount of the fee is based on the estimated amount of insurance fund or provision needed to meet future claims. Insurance programs operated by private corporations such as employee group insurance, dental plans, etc, are not included in this definition.

The insurance programs are intended to operate on a self-sustaining basis but in recent years, two of the Crown corporations have required loans or other funding from the Government to meet obligations.

Information presented in Table 11.13 has not been audited since the information presented therein is derived from interim financial statements. The most recent annual financial statements of these corporations may be found in Volume III of the Public Accounts. Insurance programs of agent Crown corporations are summarized in Note 15 to the audited finacial statements in Section 2 of this volume.

In Table 11.13, a minus "–" sign preceding the amount reported indicates a fund deficit, an expense recovery or adjustment, or a decrease or loss during the year.

[1] The Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation (CDIC) provides insurance on deposits placed with member banks and trust and loan companies for up to $60,000 per depositor, per institution. In recent years, premiums paid by member institutions have not been sufficient to meet obligations incurred by CDIC under the insurance plan. This deficiency has been funded, in part, by loans from the Government of $1,225 million at March 31, 1991 ($1,375 million at March 31, 1990). The Government is continuing to explore alternatives to allow CDIC, over the long run, to eliminate its deficiency without budgetary support from the Government. Since there is no reason to believe that this will not be the case, no provision has been made in the accounts of Canada for the losses experienced by CDIC.

[2] Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation (CMHC) administers four funds of which the Mortgage Insurance Fund (MIF) and the Mortgage-Backed Securities Guarantee Fund are active. The MIF provides insurance for a fee, to private sector lending institutions to cover mortgage lending on Canadian housing. Besides establishing a framework of confidence for mortgage lending by private institutions, the Fund facilitates an adequate supply of mortgage funds by reducing the risk to lenders and by encouraging the secondary market trading of mortgages, to make housing more accessible for Canadians. An actuarial study of the MIF as of September 30, 1990 disclosed that the Fund is more than sufficient to pay all future claims with respect to business in force. The surplus as at September 30, 1990 was estimated to be $143.5 million. The Mortgage-Backed Securities (MBS) program was implemented in 1987. For a fee paid by approved financial institutions, CMHC and ultimately the Government, guarantee timely payment of principal and interest to MBS investors who participate in a pool of MIF insured first residential mortgages which have been repackaged by the financial institution into investments of $5,000 denominations. Since 1984, the Corporation has also operated the Mortgage Rate Protection Program (MRPP). As premiums collected by CMHC for the Program are remitted directly to the Consolidated Revenue Fund (CRF) and obligations of the MRPP are ultimately payable from the CRF, the Mortgage Rate Protection Program does not meet the definition of a Crown corporation insurance plan as defined above. Therefore, operating particulars of this Program are not included in this summary but some information will be found in the notes to the Government of Canada Statement of Contingent Liabilities.

[3] The Export Development Corporation provides export and foreign investment insurance to Canadian business to facilitate and develop export trade. The insurance fund has been adequate to provide for the full cost of claims experienced to date and to establish an allowance for future claims based on previous claims experience.

[4] Less than $500,000.

[5] Refers to the difference between claims and amounts received from sales of related assets and other recoveries.

Contingent Liabilities

A contingent liability is a potential liability which may become an actual liability when one or more future events occur or fail to occur.

For the purpose of reporting contingent liabilities, the Government of Canada is defined as all organizations which are accountable for the administration of their affairs and resources either to a Minister of the Government or directly to Parliament, and which are owned or controlled by the Government. Except for Government enterprises, all Government organizations are accounted in the financial statements by consolidation. Government enterprises are accounted for by the cost method and are defined to be those corporate organizations that sell goods and services to individuals and non-government organizations as their principal activity, and are not appropriation-dependent.

Consequently, the contingent liabilities of consolidated Crown corporations are included with those of the Government in Table 11.14 but in summary form only. For further details of contingent liabilities of consolidated Crown corporations,refer to Table 5.4—"Contingent Liabilities of Consolidated Crown Corporations". Particulars of contingent liabilities of enterprise Crown corporations are not consolidated with those of the Government but details of these contingencies may be found in Table 6.10—"Contingent Liabilities of Enterprise Crown Corporations". Some Crown corporations also operate insurance programs. Information regarding these insurance programs can be found in Table 11.13 of this section.

The contingent liabilities of the Government comprise explicit guarantees by the Government, which include borrowings by other than Crown corporations, both from agent Crown corporations and from other than agents. Such explicit guarantees consist of guarantee programs of the Government, explicit guarantees by the Government for loans, financial arrangements and other potential liabilities, insurance programs of the Government and other explicit guarantees. They also comprise potential losses arising from pending and threatened litigation relating to claims and assessments in respect of breach of contract, damages to persons and property, and like items. Pending and threatened litigation is reported in total as are the contingent liabilities of consolidated Crown corporations in the following table. This table is also summarized in Note 16 to the audited financial statements of the Government in Section 2 of this volume.

[1] The authorized limits indicated in the above statement, represent the aggregate total of various types of authorities of Government bodies as stipulated in legislation, legal agreements or other documents that may be in force at any one time.

[2] A contingent liability is a potential liability which may become an actual liability when one or more future events occur or fail to occur.

[3] Represents the average percentage over the most recent 5 years of net claims to the average amount of outstanding guarantees for the same period computed as at March 31, 1991. In some situations, where historical data is not readily available, departmental estimates have been used.

[4] Includes committed guarantees for the following loans to be made: to Indians for on-reserve housing, $61,646,051 and for Indian economic development, $816,473. As at March 31, 1991, no loans had been issued for these amounts.

[5] The Act places limits on the maximum amount of guarantee for loans made by eligible lenders over different loan periods. The maximum amount of guarantee by lender is expressed in legislation as a percentage of aggregate loans made to qualified borrowers and varies according to the dollar value range of aggregate loans made by the lender. The authorized limits for given loan periods are included in the figure reported until all qualified loans made by all eligible lenders in the given periods are no longer outstanding, and are not adjusted for loan repayments nor payments made by the Government for guaranteed amounts in which default has occurred.

[6] The Atlantic Enterprise Program offers loan insurance on new term loans for the establishment, expansion or modernization of commercial operations in eligible sectors in the Atlantic provinces where the Program is administered by the Atlantic Canada Opportunities Agency ($135,276,005 as at March 31,1991) and in the Gaspé Peninsula and Magdalene Islands of Québec where administration of the Program is the responsibility of the Department of Industry, Science and Technology ($50,683,764 as at March 31, 1991). Industry, Science and Technology also has responsibility for all capital projects in excess of $20 million.

[7] Includes $62,034 attributable to the Canadian Industrial Renewal Board.

[8] The authorized limit for loan guarantees for on-reserve housing totals $750,000,000 (as shown above) for loans made by the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation, the Farm Credit Corporation and other approved lenders.

[9] Amount denominated wholly or partially in a foreign currency and translated at the closing rate of exchange as at date of the statement.

TABLE 11.14

STATEMENT OF CONTINGENT LIABILITIES
AS AT MARCH 31, 1991—Concluded

[10] The maximum aggregate amount that may be paid or that may have been paid from the Consolidated Revenue Fund (CRF) relative to Indian economic development in previous, current or subsequent years, with respect to all guarantees authorized and granted, is set at $60 million. As at March 31, 1991, $26,078,088 has been expended from the CRF leaving a balance of $33,921,912 available for disbursement.

[11] Maislin Industries Ltd was placed in receivership on July 11, 1983 and was declared bankrupt on October 19, 1983. To date, the Government has made interim payments totalling $20,361,132 US to creditors under a guarantee in the amount of $27,000,000 US. It is anticipated that the Government will be called upon to make further payments to settle remaining obligations to creditors when certain issues are settled in US Federal Court, however the amount cannot be determined at present with any certainty.

[12] Since 1984, the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation (CMHC) has operated the Mortgage Rate Protection Program on behalf of the Government. In return for payment of a premium, CMHC will reimburse homeowners 75% of any increase in monthly mortgage payments, above a deductible, due to higher interest rates at the time of mortgage renewal. As recent mortgage interest rates have been relatively stable, the Program is not widely utilized and loans covered by the Program at March 31, 1991 amounted to only $911,000 ($911,000 at March 31, 1990). Premiums collected by CMHC are remitted directly to the Consolidated Revenue Fund (CRF) and obligations are ultimately payable from the CRF. Because of the nature of the Program, it is not possible to estimate the amounts, if any, that might be payable at some future date.

[13] There have been no claims under the Nuclear Liability Act since its inception in 1970. The Act covers 9 Canadian nuclear installations as at March 31, 1991.

[14] The Fishing Vessel Insurance Plan is administered by the Government to assist fishermen in meeting abnormal capital losses. A consolidated specified purpose account is credited with all amounts received by way of premiums, recoveries and with advances in accordance with regulations by the Government, such advances not to exceed $150,000 at any time. The account is debited with refunds of premiums and payments in settlement of third party vessel collision damage claims against fishermen, where the collision involves a vessel insured under the Plan. As at March 31, 1991, the insured value of vessels under the Plan amounted to $281,388,000; the balance of the account was $25,321,342 and outstanding claims against the Plan amounted to $1,250,000.

[15] The Export Development Act specifies that Export Development Corporation may enter into contracts of insurance, re-insurance, related guarantees and other agreements up to a maximum of $7 billion, the authorized limit.

[16] A letter of comfort has been issued with respect to credit grain sales by The Canadian Wheat Board. The letter states that the Government will assume responsibility for the liabilities arising from defaults in payment by countries purchasing Canadian grain on credit. Receivables under this guarantee amounted to $5.2 billion at March 31, 1991.

[17] Less than 0.1%.

[18] The Government has agreed to pay Yukon Energy Corporation up to $300,000 per year up to March 31, 1997 should electricity sales to Curragh Resources Inc. fall below specified limits.

[19] Classified as follows:

	(in millions of dollars)
a. alleged breach of written, verbal, statutory contracts including construction disputes	1,044
b. damage to property including loss of income	2,730
c. physical and mental injury including accidents, false imprisonment	190
d. expropriation and land claims	10,716
e. government employee disputes	38
f. not otherwise classified, miscellaneous	1,163
Sub total	15,881
Less duplicated claims	25
Total	15,856

Included in (d.) above is $10.3 billion, a majority of which is related to native statutory and treaty obligations representing plaintiffs' claims in 85 litigation cases. There are another 134 similar cases for which amounts are not stated in the claims, and for which it is not possible to determine the amounts that may be ultimately payable. The Government also has 292 specific native claims of which $121 million is included in (d.) and represents plaintiffs' claims in 54 cases. The amounts involved for the remaining 238 claims cannot be determined at this time and no amount for such claims is shown.

[20] The Government has 7 comprehensive native land claims under negotiation. A further 20 claims have been validated and are awaiting negotiation. Another 9 are under review. Of the 7 comprehensive claims, 2 are in the final stages of negotiation. Should the 2 claims be ratified, the Government would be liable to pay financial compensation over a number of years as follows:

	(in millions of dollars)
Council for Yukon Indians	248
Tungavik Federation of Nunavut	612
	860
Implementation costs over the next ten years	388
	1,248

Although the Dene Nation and Métis Association failed to ratify their claim in total in July 1990, it will form the basis for final negotiation by regions. This claim amounting to $504 million plus associated costs of $212 million, is now included in Claims and Pending and Threatened Litigation under expropriation and land claims.

[21] Contingent gains. A contingent gain is a potential gain or possible recovery that may become an actuality when one or more future events occur or fail to occur. Three departments reported contingent gains as at March 31, 1991 totalling $9.1 million.

[22] In accordance with the Government's significant accounting policies, the contingent liabilities of Crown corporations that rely on Government funding as their principal source of revenue, are consolidated with those of the Government. See Table 5.4 of this volume for further details of contingent liabilities of consolidated Crown corporations.

INTRODUCTION TO THE PUBLIC ACCOUNTS

Nature of the Public Accounts

The Public Accounts is the report of the Government of Canada prepared each fiscal year by the Receiver General as required by Section 64 of the Financial Administration Act.

The report covers the fiscal year of the Government, which ends on March 31, and is prepared from data contained in the accounts of Canada and from more detailed records maintained in departments and agencies. The accounts of Canada is the centralized record of the Government's financial transactions maintained by the Receiver General in which the transactions of all departments and agencies are summarized. Each department and agency is responsible for reconciling its accounts to the control accounts of the Receiver General, and for maintaining detailed records of the transactions in their accounts.

The report covers the financial transactions of the Government during the year. In certain cases, parliamentary authority to undertake transactions was provided by legislation approved in earlier years.

Format of the Public Accounts

The Public Accounts is produced in three volumes. Volume I presents a summary analysis of the financial transactions of the Government while Volume III contains an annual consolidated report on the businesses and activities of all parent Crown corporations together with a listing of all Crown corporations and other corporate interests of Canada.

Volume II is published in two parts. Part I presents the financial operations of the Government, segregated by ministry while Part II presents additional information and analyses.

Part I is designed to reflect as closely as possible the form and content of Part II of the Main Estimates. Most tables and statements in Part I display the source and disposition of spending authorities. The level of details provided for the source and disposition of authorities is explained below:

- Source of Authorities
  - Available from previous years
    Spending authorities allowed to be brought forward from the previous year. Includes only those authorities where there is a specified dollar limit on total spending, or on the accumulated outstanding balance of items where revenues and receipts are available for spending. Usually these items are either revolving funds or loans. These amounts are available for spending without further approval from Parliament.
  - Main and Supplementary Estimates
    Include:
    - spending authorities requested in Main and Supplementary Estimates;
    - forecasts included in Main and Supplementary Estimates of spending under authorities granted in various other statutes including Appropriation Acts of previous years.
  - Adjustments and transfers
    Include:
    - transfers from or to other ministries such as Treasury Board contingency votes or changes in ministry responsibility;
    - transfers within the ministry from one vote to another (under Parliamentary authority), or between activities, types of expenditures or transfer payments;
    - changes to statutory amounts due to adjustments of spending forecasts included in Main and Supplementary Estimates, due to cancellation or amendment to statutes or due to adjustments of Crown corporations borrowing authorities;
    - reserved allotments to cover over-expenditures of previous year's authorities.
  - Total available for use
    Authorities available for spending during the current year (net of forecasted revenues and receipts available for spending).
- Disposition of Authorities
  - Used in the current year
    Amounts spent in the current year (net of actual revenues and receipts available for spending).
  - Lapsed (variance under)
    Unused spending authorities which cannot be carried forward to a subsequent year.
  - Overexpended (variance over)
    Excess of spending over authorities granted.
  - Available for use in subsequent years
    Unused spending authorities which have not lapsed and which are carried forward to a subsequent year.

- Used in the previous year
  Amounts spent in the previous year (net of actual revenues and receipts available for spending). For authorities, activities or transfer payments that no longer exist in the current year, the related total net expenditure of the previous year is reported as a single amount in line with the notation "Appropriations (activities or items) not required for the current year".

The content of Part I is summarized as follows:

(a) Summary Tables (Section 1)

Section 1 includes the following tables which provide summaries of the financial operations contained in the ministerial sections:

Table 1 presents the revenue and expenditure on both a gross and net basis

Table 2 presents expenditure by type for each ministry

Table 3 presents expenditure by standard object for each ministry

Table 4 presents revenue by main classification for each ministry

Table 5 presents the source and disposition of budgetary authorities by ministry

Table 6 presents the source and disposition of non-budgetary authorities by ministry

Table 7 presents the source and disposition of budgetary and non-budgetary authorities by ministry and by type of authority (voted and statutory)

Section 1 also includes, as appendices, the full wording of all authorities granted in current year Appropriation Acts, of all authorities granted by statutes other than Appropriation Acts, of all non-lapsing authorities granted in the current year, and of all authorities available from previous years.

(b) Ministerial Sections (Sections 2 to 30)

There is one section for each ministry. The programs for the departments and agencies for which a Minister is responsible to Parliament are grouped together to provide a total ministry presentation. Each ministerial section provides a statement of program objectives and activity descriptions. Each ministerial section also includes, where applicable, a uniform set of statements to present each ministry's financial operations. These statements are:

- Ministry Summary
  This statement displays by program the source and disposition of each budgetary and non-budgetary authority granted by Parliament in Appropriation Acts and other statutes.
- Programs by Activity
  This statement displays by program the source and disposition of authorities for each activity under each type of expenditure (operating, capital, transfer payments and non-budgetary).
- Transfer Payments
  This statement displays by program the source and disposition of authorities for each transfer payment.
- Details of Amounts Credited to the Vote
  This statement displays by program the nature of revenues and receipts which increase the amounts which may be spent from appropriations having net voting authority.
- Revenue
  This statement displays by program the nature of revenue collected for each main classification of revenue.

The statements in the ministerial sections are designed so that the relevant totals and sub-totals may be traced directly to a preceeding statement and then to the Summary Tables in Section 1. In this way:

- data in the Transfer Payments statement can be traced to the Programs by Activity statement which can in turn be traced to the Ministry Summary (of source and disposition of authorities) statement. Data in the Ministry Summary statement can be traced to the Summary Tables (Tables 5, 6 and 7) in Section 1.
- data in the Details of Amounts Credited to the Vote statement can be traced to the Programs by Activity statement and also to Summary Table 3 in Section 1.
- data in the Revenue statement can be traced to Summary Table 4 in Section 1.

TABLE 2a

General Summary
Recapitulation of Expenditure with Outside Parties by Type

Table 2a reconciles total net ministerial expenditure (Table 2) with expenditure with outside parties on both a gross and net basis reported in Table 1 of this section and in the Statement of Revenue and Expenditure in Section 2 of Volume I. The reconciling items include the expenditure of the consolidated specified purpose accounts, the provision for valuation, the expenditure of the consolidated Crown corporations, and the elimination of expenditure internal to the Government. The difference between gross and net expenditure is revenue credited to appropriations and revenue of consolidated Crown corporations credited to expenditure.

The same amount has been added to the "Other" classification under "Other program expenditures" as an offset to this reallocation.

TABLE 3

General Summary
Ministerial Expenditure by Standard Object

Table 3 presents expenditure by standard object for each ministry on both a gross and net basis. The difference between gross and net expenditure is revenue credited to appropriations. The standard object presentation of expenditure is related to the goods and services acquired, and transfer payments made, by the Government. "Total gross expenditure" represents the total of expenditure charged to standard objects 1 to 12 inclusively. "Total net expenditure" represents the result of total gross expenditure less total revenue credited to appropriations. "Total net expenditure" discloses the total expenditure reported for each ministry in the ministerial sections of this volume.

Table 3a reconciles total net ministerial expenditure with expenditure with outside parties reported on both a gross and net basis in Table 1 of this section and in the Statement of Revenue and Expenditure in Section 2 of Volume 1.

TABLE 3a

General Summary
Recapitulation of Expenditure with Outside Parties by Standard Object

Table 3a reconciles total net ministerial expenditure (Table 3) with expenditure with outside parties reported on both a gross and net basis in Table 1 of this section and in the Statement of Revenue and Expenditure in Section 2 of Volume I. The reconciling items include the expenditure of the consolidated specified purpose accounts, the provision for valuation, the expenditure of the consolidated Crown corporations and the elimination of expenditure internal to the Government. The difference between gross and net expenditure is revenue credited to appropriations and revenue of consolidated Crown corporations credited to expenditure.

TABLE 4

General Summary
Ministerial Revenue by Main Classification

Table 4 presents revenue by main classification for each ministry on both a gross and net basis. The difference between gross and net revenue is revenue credited to appropriations. The table also discloses revenue internal to the Government.

In this table, revenue from outside parties represents revenue received from organizations and individuals outside the Government of Canada as a reporting entity while revenue internal to the Government represents revenue generated from transactions between organizations within the reporting entity. The Government of Canada as a reporting entity is defined in Note 1 to the audited financial statements in Section 2 of Volume I.

Revenue credited to appropriations represents revenue that has been credited to expenditure rather than to revenue where authority has been granted by Parliament.

"Total gross revenue" column represents revenue from all sources, including revenue credited to appropriations. The "Revenue internal to the Government" column represents the tax and non-tax revenue internal to the Government. The "Total net revenue" column represents tax and non-tax revenue from both external and internal sources, excluding revenue credited to appropriations. This latter column discloses total ministerial revenue as reported in the "Revenue" statement in each ministerial section of this volume.

Table 4a reconciles total net ministerial revenue with revenue from outside parties reported on both a gross and net basis in Table 1 of this section and in the Statement of Revenue and Expenditure in Section 2 of Volume 1.

TABLE 4a

General Summary
Recapitulation of Revenue from Outside Parties by Main Classification

Table 4a reconciles total net ministerial revenue (Table 4) with revenue from outside parties reported on both a gross and net basis in Table 1 of this section and in the Statement of Revenue and Expenditure in Section 2 of Volume I. The reconciling items include the revenue from the consolidated specified purpose accounts, the adjustment of the Exchange Fund Account to recognize the international reserves held in the Account, the accrual of non-tax revenue and the elimination of revenue internal to the Government. The difference between gross and net revenue is revenue credited to appropriations and revenue of consolidated Crown corporations credited to expenditure.

The level of details provided for the source and disposition of authorities is explained in the Introduction to this volume. In addition, detailed information is provided in the "Ministry Summary" statement in each ministerial section of this volume.

The Government submits its spending proposals to Parliament in the annual Estimates. During the year, the Government may request further appropriations. The initial request is called the "Main Estimates" and additional requests are called "Supplementary Estimates". With these Estimates, the Government requests authority for that part of the proposed spending which is not already provided by other statutes. The amounts making up the total of such proposed spending are authorized in appropriation acts and are generally referred to as "annual" or "voted" authorities. The balance of the planned spending is made under authority of other statutes which authorize disbursements for specified purposes, and for such amounts and time periods as are set by those acts. The proposed or estimated uses of most of these "statutory" authorities for the current year are included in the Estimates for information purposes; however, they are not included in appropriation acts because they have already been authorized by Parliament.

Voted authorities, with few exceptions, lapse at the end of the year if not used, while statutory authorities, with few exceptions, are carried forward to future years. Those authorities which extend to subsequent years are referred to as "non-lapsing".

Budgetary appropriations provide spending authority for those transactions which enter into the calculation of the annual deficit or surplus of the Government. Non-budgetary appropriations provide spending authority for all transactions which result in the acquisition or disposal of loans, investments and advances. Balances of appropriations brought forward from the previous years are available for spending, together with current increases to such authorities.

The totals of these authorities are reduced by the amount of their current year use to determine the balances which lapse, are overexpended or are carried forward to future years, depending upon the type of authority. In cases where the spending of loan repayments is authorized, the non-budgetary spending is reported net of such repayments.

Human Resource Development Programs

To increase the marketability and employability of Canadians, expand employment opportunities, and to meet the needs of the labour market, by developing, and adapting the skill base through a combination of work-experience and training, mobilization of community resources, and human resource planning and adjustment measures necessary for the efficient functioning of the Canadian labour market. Note: The full wording of all authorities granted in current year Appropriation Acts, of all authorities granted by statutes other than Appropriation Acts, of all non-lapsing authorities granted in the current year, and of all authorities available from previous years is given in Section 1 of this volume.

(S) Statutory authority.

(L) Non-budgetary authority (loan, investment or advance).

(1) Treasury Board Vote 5—Government contingencies.

(2) In accordance with Sections 29, 31 and 32 of the Export Development Act, the authorized limit of $6 billion is for loans in support of export development. At the time this authority was granted, these loans were accounted for on a non-budgetary basis. Subsequently, the Government changed its accounting policies which resulted in concessional loans being accounted for on a budgetary basis. Therefore, this authority is available for both budgetary and non-budgetary transactions. However, since the authority is for loans it is shown as non-budgetary for reporting purposes.

(3) The amount reported in the previous year's Public Accounts has been reduced by $103,785,107.

Maritime Forces

This element encompasses the creation and maintenance of general-purpose regular and reserve maritime forces designed primarily to fulfil the missions of defending, in conjunction with US and NATO forces, the maritime approaches to North America and the sea areas vital to NATO; and conducting in conjunction with US Forces, surveillance to detect, track and identify strategic submarine forces threatening North America. The forces raised for these purposes have the inherent capabilities necessary to fulfil the other missions assigned, namely: protecting Canadian territory, rights and interests against external maritime challenges; assisting other Government departments and agencies in enforcing Canadian laws and regulations in maritime areas under Canadian jurisdiction; contributing maritime forces to international arrangements to prevent or contain conflicts outside the NATO area; and contributing to national development.

Land Forces in Canada

This element encompasses the creation and maintenance of general-purpose regular and reserve land forces designed primarily to fulfil, concurrently, the two missions of defending, in conjunction with US Forces, against hostile military lodgement in North America; and providing, in an emergency, additional land forces for the defence of Europe within the framework of agreed NATO commitments. The forces raised for these purposes have the inherent capabilities necessary to fulfil the other missions assigned, namely: promoting international stability by contributing to peacekeeping activities in co-operation with other members of the international community; supplementing and supporting the civilian authorities in maintaining surveillance and preserving control over and security within the national territory of Canada; assisting civilian authorities in the event of emergency or disaster; and contributing to national development.

Air Forces in Canada

This element encompasses the creation and maintenance of general-purpose regular and reserve air forces designed primarily to fulfil, concurrently, the two missions of defending, in conjunction with US Forces against aerospace attack on North America; and providing in an emergency additional general-purpose air forces for the defence of Europe within the framework of agreed NATO commitments. It includes, as well, the provision of an air transport system to support military commitments in Canada and abroad, tactical helicopter forces to support the needs of the land forces in Canada, maritime air forces to support Canada's maritime forces, and search and rescue forces. The forces raised for these purposes have the inherent capabilities necessary to fulfil the other missions assigned, namely: supplementing and supporting the civilian authorities in maintaining surveillance and preserving control over the Canadian airspace, assisting civilian authorities in the event of emergency or disaster and contributing to national development.

Canadian Forces in Europe

This element encompasses the creation and maintenance of military forces in Europe in order to prevent or contain armed attack against the European NATO area. It involves the three missions of providing land forces, air forces and national command and support of all Canadian forces which would, in an emergency, serve in Europe.

Communication Services

This element encompasses the creation and maintenance of forces designed to provide information handling services in the form of strategic communications in support of the Canadian Forces and Emergency Government (EMGOV) tasks. In addition, communications research and high frequency direction-finding facilities are provided.

Personnel Support

This element encompasses the provision of services required for the personnel development (recruitment, individual training, education), personnel management (administration, career assignment, spiritual, morale, comfort support), and health services (medical, dental) as appropriate for military and civilian members of the Department.

Materiel Support

This element encompasses the provision of supply, transportation, equipment engineering and maintenance, real property management, and research and development.

Policy Direction and Management Services

This element encompasses the formulation and recommendation of defence objectives and policy options and the development of clear authoritative expressions of Government approved defence policy to provide overall direction for developmental planning in the Department and the management of the Defence Services Program. Equally important, is the command and control function, within which the detailed operational, materiel, personnel and financial preparations are made for times of crisis or war. This function also embodies the exercise of command and control of the "day-to-day" operations of the Canadian Forces by the Chief of Defence Staff or delegated subordinate commanders. With respect to the more general management services, this element includes the development, and general direction of management information systems, consulting, audit, evaluation, financial and accounting services within the Department, that are consistent with legislative and regulatory requirements and authority.

Department

Departmental Administration Program

Objective

To provide direction, planning, policy development, advisory and administrative support services to the Department.

Activity Description

Departmental Executive

The departmental executive activity is responsible for the overall management of the department. It consists of the offices of the Minister of National Health and Welfare and the Minister of State for Seniors, and the office of the Deputy Minister of National Health and Welfare. In addition the activity provides secretariat services to the National Council of Welfare and the National Advisory Council on Aging. The Principal Nursing Officer, the Senior Advisory on the Status of Women, and the Secretariat for the Study of Canada's demographic future are also included in this activity.

Policy, Planning and Information

Policy development and strategic planning involves initiating and co-ordinating the policy development responsibilities of the Department, developing and assessing options for program change, identifying and assessing the significance of emerging health and social issues in the long-term and recommending policy approaches for addressing emerging trends. With regard to information systems, the activity plans, develops, and maintains systems that support the development, management, and evaluation of health and social policies and programs. This is achieved through the provision of technical and financial assistance to provinces, territories, and nationally recognized associations and agencies involved in health and welfare programs.

Intergovernmental and International Affairs

This activity co-ordinates the Department's participation in international health activities. In particular it is responsible for co-ordinating Canada's contribution to those international organizations to which Canada has made a financial commitment, where Canada plays an administrative or management role, or where Canada is a signatory to an agreement, such as the World Health Organization (WHO), the Pan American Health Organization, and meetings of the Commonwealth Health Ministers. As well the activity is responsible for advising on, and participation in, bilateral health relations with foreign governments. It also co-ordinates Canadian participation in international social affairs, and promotes cooperative relationships between international, governmental, and non-governmental organizations and their Canadian counterparts. It develops the Canadian position on social-policy issues being considered by the United Nations. Participates in the United Nations Commissions on social development and on narcotic drugs. The activity fosters relations with the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development and with United Nations agencies concerning the disabled, the aged, youth, the family, and illicit use of drugs. Both the above components also have federal/provincial responsibilities. They are the liaison and co-ordination point with the provincial and territorial governments and work on a day-to-day basis with the central agencies on federal-provincial matters. They provide secretariat services for meetings of Ministers and Deputy Ministers of Health and Social Services, and monitor the work of federal/provincial advisory committees and working groups. The activity is also responsible for monitoring and obtaining international information on health and welfare matters. This information is analyzed and submitted for consideration in program planning for the Department. In addition it organizes visits of Ministers of health or welfare, and officials and schol-ars of foreign countries, to facilitate the exchange of information. The activity administers the World Health Organization Fellowship Program, through which Canadian health professionals carry out short-term studies abroad, and foreign professionals visit Canada on WHO fellowships to conduct studies in their field of specialization. It is responsible for the development and implementation of special international events such as "international years" and hosts major international conferences in which the Department has the lead federal role.

Corporate Management

In addition to its internal management, the activity provides the Department with services in the areas of administration, informatics, facilities planning and management, planning and financial administration, correspondence and parliamentary relations, management services, communications and personnel administration. The program Audit and Review sub-activity reports directly to the Deputy Minister and thereby provides independent evaluations of the effectiveness of departmental programs and reviews and assessments of the operations and activities which support the delivery of those programs. It is responsible for the design and execution of program evaluation projects and internal audits throughout the Department.

The Staffing Programs activity encompasses activities in support of delegated and non-delegated staffing, including policy development, resourcing of the Management Category, administration of staffing delegation, establishment of tests and standards for selection, administration of staffing priorities and services in support of recruitment and promotion. This activity also encompasses the delivery of employment equity programs and special development programs in support of the Management Category.

Audit

The Audit activity reviews departmental and PSC staffing practices and procedures in order to determine that appointments conform with the Public Service Employment Act and Regulations and Commission policy. It reviews the manner in which departments administer selected aspects of their personnel services for which Treasury Board has policy responsibility. This latter activity is governed by an agreement between Treasury Board Secretariat and the Public Service Commission.

Appeals and Investigations

The Appeals and Investigations activity, through the establishment of independent boards, hears appeals by public servants against alleged breaches of the Public Service Employment Act and Regulations in such matters as appointment, demotion and release. In addition, complaints of alleged irregularities in staffing processes and matters of personal harassment in the workplace are investigated. Training, advice and assistance are provided to departments, unions and other interested individuals.

Training Programs

The Training Programs activity encompasses two sub-activities: The Language Training sub-activity provides language training in both official languages and related language training services, in conformity with Government policy, to meet the needs of departments and agencies in the federal Public Service, and occasionally those of outside clients. It provides second language courses designed to meet the job-related linguistic requirements of departments and a range of advisory, informational and co-ordinating services related to language training.

The Staff Development and Training sub-activity provides supervisory, professional, managerial, discretionary language training, and related training services to federal public servants across Canada in response to Treasury Board policies and departmental demands. It provides courses designed to meet the job-related training requirements in departments and a range of advisory, informational and co-ordinating services related to training.

Administration

The Administration activity includes the activities of the Chairman and Commissioners, corporate policy and strategic planning, co-ordination of parts of the Official Languages Program for which the PSC is responsible, management systems and policies, internal audit and program evaluation and financial, personnel and other administrative and support services for the Commission.
